BRITISH PACT TO LIFT ALL RESTRICTIONS ON GERMANY

Trade Agreement To Be Interpreted Liberally

TEXT PUBLISHED

Most Favored Nation Treatment Is Basis

(Reuter's Service)

London, Dec. 4.—The text of the Anglo-German Commercial Treaty has been published. It will remain in force for five years and replaces with modifications the Treaty passed in 1898.

The Treaty secures for British subjects and companies "National" treatment in Germany in respect of taxation and shipping except possibly in the coasting trade. As the basis of the Treaty is the most favored nation treatment, legislation must be passed in Britain removing the wartime disability of German citizens and companies in respect of their engaging in non-ferrous metal industries and banking in the United Kingdom and employment of German seamen on British ships. The great mass of prohibitions on importation of goods into Germany which impeded British trade with Germany will be swept away. Most favored nation clauses will be interpreted most liberally.

Both parties agree to abstain from using their respective tariffs as means of discrimination. Both undertake the provisions of the international conventions on trade and shipping concluded under the auspices of the League of Nations, notably the Barcelona and Geneva conventions.

The Treaty applies only to the United Kingdom but the right to adhere to the Treaty is accorded the Dominions, India, the Colonies and Protectorates and the British Mandated Territories whose goods shall enjoy most favored nation treatment in Germany, but the German Government is empowered to withdraw this privilege in respect of any part of the Empire which does not adhere to the Treaty before September 1, 1926.

SPECIAL IMPORT DUTIES TO HELP CHINA, RUMORED

Powers To Send Commission Here, Report In London

(Reuter's Service)

London, Dec. 4.—Chinese Government bonds have improved this week owing to a report that a consortium of the Powers will send a commission to China to arrange special import duties which will be applied for the general welfare of China.

COSSACK SHIPS LEAVE WOOSUNG, CHINESE REPORT

Two Of Three Vessels Said To Have Sailed For Unknown Destination

Two of the three Russian Volunteer Ships which had been at anchor off Woosung pending ultimate decision as to the disposal of the ships and their Cossack crews, have sailed for an unknown destination, according to the Chinese press.

An account published in a local vernacular newspaper states that the first of the ships to leave sailed on November 27 despite the fact that the Chinese warship Tso Chien had been detailed to watch it. It is reported to have carried a considerable supply of arms.

Another of the Russian ships is said to have sailed from Woosung on Thursday. The Chinese warship Yung Fung has now been detailed to watch the lone remaining Russian ship.

DISPUTES STILL HALT DECISIONS ON OPIUM PACTS

Second Conference May Carry On After Christmas Adjournment

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Dec. 4.—The sub-committees of the Second Opium Conference continued their discussions today. The date of the plenary sitting of the conference depends on the work accomplished by these committees. It is now possible that the conference will not conclude before Christmas and an adjournment after the holidays is being mooted.

The First Opium Conference, on the other hand, will reassemble tomorrow for the purpose of discussing the Chinese objection to the terms of the protocol, when it is hoped that an agreement will be reached.

Expulsion Return Application Denied By Mixed Court

W. Wallace Refused 10 Day Permit To Transact Settlement Business

W. Wallace, an undesignated foreigner, who was expelled from the International Settlement several weeks ago, after being tried on a charge of obtaining money on false pretenses, yesterday failed in his attempt to gain a 10 day stay of expulsion while attending to business within the settlement.

He made the application, claiming Chinese within the settlement owed him money and that he wished to collect it. He said he is living at a downtown hotel, close to the settlement.

It was brought out in the Mixed Court hearing that Wallace owes money to various persons within the settlement.

Fine Jail System Is Promised Bingoo Folks

The folks down Bingoo way are going to have a fine little jail system some of these days.

For their police force, Zung Kayee, is now in Shanghai on a six months' inspection tour in which time he hopes to become thoroughly conversant with all methods of correct jail-conducting.

Zung—the force, himself—came to the great city more than a month ago on a visit. He was having a splendid time, taking in everything that is usually taken in by visitors and getting taken in the same manner

One day, a week ago, with spring in the air and a light feeling in his heart, Zung started to see some further sights of Shanghai. He wandered down Nanking Road, getting over near the race course. Then he took a rickshaw.

A big town cop thought Zung looked suspicious, even if he were one of the brothers of the great fraternal order of pavement pounders. The Shanghai cop started chasing the little town guy. The big town won out but not before the little town chap was seen to toss away a revolver into the trickle of water which swerves past the race course.

Zung in Mixed Court yesterday said he didn't have a pistol and that he didn't start running when his unsympathetic brother started pursuing him, and that he was not where or doing what the big town man said he was.

Mixed Court, however, accepted the word of its own constable over the word of this small town guy and Zung is now reposing in the big town gaol, to have and to be held there for the next six months.

A fine opportunity, the big town has offered him to make a thorough study of this year's style in jails.

PROSPERITY FOR AMERICA PREDICTED BY SECY. MELLON

Head Of Treasury Is Optimistic On Outlook

TAX REDUCTION

Per Capita Levy Is Cut In Half In Four Years

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, Dec. 4.—Mr. Andrew W. Mellor, the Secretary of the Treasury, in his annual report to Congress predicted several years of prosperous and healthy conditions in the United States such as those which succeeded the 1896 election. He explained that the prediction was based on the fact that the verdict of Americans was overwhelmingly against "various theories inconsistent with economic laws." Mr. Mellon added that the United States was the first nation to come through the post-war transition stage successfully but America's commerce and industry must maintain her anchor to windward in future world trade for as America had recovered so now Europe was becoming stabilised, thanks to the Dawes plan. Although it was true that an improved situation in Europe would benefit the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury warned his hearers that cheaper production and the lower standards of living abroad would compel closer calculation on the part of America to meet competition in the world's markets.

The past four years had witnessed a cut in the per capita tax on the United States from $54 to $27 while public expenditure which in 1920 exceeded $6,500,000,000 was reduced during the past year to $3,500,000,000. Forecasting further tax reduction, Mr. Mellon declared that the reductions already effected had been of great service to business. He uttered a warning against utilisation of the field of taxation as a "field for socialistic experiment or as a club to punish success."

PARIS HOPEFUL AS CHAMBERLAIN MEETS HERRIOT

Important Results Are Looked For As Outcome Of Conversations

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Dec. 5.—The papers anticipate favorable results from today's meeting between M. Herriot and Mr. Austen Chamberlain. They believe that the main subjects of discussion will be the situation in the Near East and security.

The press emphasises Mr. Chamberlain's friendship towards France.

Le Journal thinks that the meeting will be of great importance, and says that the Entente Cordiale will be decisively affected one way or the other by the conversations between the French Premier and the British Foreign Secretary.

DAILY MAIL SEES PLOT TO MURDER HIGH OFFICIALS

Egyptians Plan Slaying Of Cabinet Members, Is Claim

(Reuter's Service)

London, Dec. 5.—A sensational story is published in the Daily Mail to the effect that a plot has been discovered to assassinate prominent members of the Cabinet.

The news of the conspiracy, which, is supposed to be engineered by agents of the Egyptian Nationalists, is stated by the paper to be conveyed to the Government in a despatch from Viscount Allenby (the High Commissioner for Egypt), the receipt of which, the Daily Mail goes on to say, was followed by a special meeting of the Cabinet, succeeded by a conference of police chiefs, who arranged elaborate measures of protection and gave instructions to armed detectives to act drastically if necessary.

STREET UNIONS URGE PROTESTS ON PHONE RATES

Resolutions Decrying Increase Are Adopted At Two Meetings

Vigorous protests against the prospective increase in rates announced by the Shanghai Mutual Telephone Company, Ltd., and authorised by the Municipal Council, are being voiced by the Chinese merchant class.

At a meeting of street unions of Kwangse, Shantung, Honan, Great Western, Szechuen and Ningpo Roads and Avenue Edward VII, resolutions were adopted authorising the sending of a letter of protest to the telephone company. It was also decided to ask the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce to mediate in the matter.

Another meeting held by the Nine Roads Streets Unions of the Western District voted to get in touch with the various public bodies in the Settlement and the French Concession with a view to formulating a joint protest. Should the telephone company remain obdurate in its demands for the enforcement of the new rate schedule, it was voted to dispense with telephone service.

New York World Asks Equality For Britain On Debts

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Dec. 5.—In an editorial article on debt-funding, the New York World points out that Britain is regularly repaying large sums to the United States, while the United States is reported to be considering granting France more favorable terms of repayment of her debt than those granted Britain, who has no present prospect of payment of France's debt to her. The journal asks whether in justice, America can ask Britain to pay more than France or any other first-class power or ask France to settle her debt to America before she settles with Britain.

LEAGUE GETS WARNING ON EGYPT SENT BY BRITAIN

Note Is Forwarded To Geneva By Foreign Office

NO INTERVENTION

Refer To Resolution On Disarmament Protocol

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, December 4.—On November 19 Great Britain sent a note to the Secretariat of the League of Nations referring to a resolution of the Assembly on October 2, which held that the Disarmament Protocol was open to the signature of non-members of the League of Nations. As the terms of this resolution might suggest the communication of the Protocol to Egypt, the note recalls the British notification of 1922 to the other Powers on the subject of the special Anglo-Egyptian relations defined in the declaration recognising Egyptian independence, which relations vitalyl involve the rights and interests of the British Empire. Therefore any attempt at interference in the affairs of Egypt by another Power will be regarded as an unfriendly act.

The note concludes by saying that His Majesty's Government is consequently unable to admit that the Protocol if signed by Egypt will enable the Egyptian Government to invoke the intervention of the League in settlemeint of matters absolutely reserved to the discretion of His Majesty's Government.

The Secretary-General of the League replied enquiring whether the British Government intended the note to be circulated to the Powers to which the Protocol had been sent. A reply was received on December 3 stating this was the British Government's desire. The Note was accordingly so circulated.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Dec. 5.—Reuter learns that the Disarmament Protocol was sent to the Egyptian Government by the Secretariat of the League; hence the British Note to Cairo as to the other capitals.

'Retire To Private Life, Hand Over Your Troops,' Hsiao Yao-nan Tells Wu

Message From Hupeh Tuchun Urges Former Head Of Chihli Militarists To Issue Proclamation Declaring His Intentions

(Special Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS)

Hankow, December 4 (Delayed)—Tuchun Hsiao Yao-nan today telegraphed to Marshal Wu Pei-fu as follows:

"It is certainly most regrettable that your plan for unifying the country has been frustrated on account of unexpected changes, but the world knows your sincerity and sympathises with you.

"It is in view of the prevailing troubles, the unexpected turn of events and the fickle attitude of the people that I feel a moral obligation to tell you what is best for you to do. Being so intimate with you, I feel I would not be faithful or trustworthy if I were to refrain from telling you what I know.

"At the present time, the people throughout the country hate to hear of war and are desirous of having peace. This is the prevailing public opinion.

"It is time for you to study the situation seriously and make this big sacrifice. It would be the best policy for you immediately to issue a proclamation declaring that you are retiring to private life and to hand over your troops to the government for reorganisation. This would enable the world to know that you want to benefit your country even at the expense of giving up your own ideas. This would be a heroic deed, and I tell you in perfect sincerity that it will not be considered a disgrace.

"I, Hsiao Yao-nan, unworthy as I am, should follow you in what you do had I not been entrusted with the responsibility to preserve peace and order in this province. At the present time, I cannot act according to my will in this matter, but I shall retire and refrain from having a hand in political affairs as soon as I can entrust my work to someone else.

"These are the humble expressions of my heart, and I hope that they will have your kind consideration.

"(Signed) Hsiao Yao-nan."

A report was in circulation here today that the bridge over the Yellow River had been partially blown up. No mails are being dispatched from Hankow to Peking direct, everything being sent by way of Shanghai.

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, Dec. 4.—Rumor had it that Marshal Wu Pei-fu would arrive here today, but he has not come as yet.

Judging from all accounts available, it appears that Marshal Wu has now come down as far as Hsinyang. It is generally expected that he will arrive here in a day or two.

According to a report circulated by the Kuo Wen News Agency, the town of Chengchow was thoroughly looted by Wu Pei-fu's troops following their flight from Loyang. Forty Japanese merchants who have shops in Chengchow are reported to have sought shelter in the premises of the San Lin Japanese Company and to have sent a message to the Japanese consular authorities at Hankow requesting that protection be given them.

ROSENBERG WINS FIRST BRUSH IN SOVIET FLEET CASE

Mixed Court Accepts Jurisdiction In Suit Alleging Breach Of Contract

Jurisdiction of the Mixed Court of the Internatonal Settlement to hear the case of the Rosenberg China company against the Russian Volunteer Fleet of Vladivostok was announced by Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Li yesterday, after Dr. O. Fischer of Musso and Fischer, attorney for the fleet, had moved for dismissal of the case.

The Rosenberg company is suing the fleet for more than Tls. 200,000, alleging breach of contract which called for delivery of the salvage of a Russian vessel, in Vladivostok waters, to Shanghai.

The magistrate and assessor ruled that the Mixed Court has jurisdiction in cases where Russians are involved, otherwise all criminal cases of Russians could not be heard in Shanghai.

Mr. F. J. Schuhl, of Schuhl and Schoenfeld, mentioned a few of the experiences of Mr. Harry Rosenberg in Vladivostok while attempting to get action on the case. Mr. Rosenberg was unable to find an attorney to take his case in the north, all expressing fear of the government. He was forced to flee from the country because he could not get his passport vised. He was smuggled from the country, paying a professional smuggler $500 for the selection of route and arrangements.

Mr. Stirling Fessenden, of Fessenden, Holcomb and Snyder, also appeared for Mr. Rosenberg, arguing one point not taken up by Mr. Schuhl. Dr. Fischer fought the appearance of two attorneys on one side. He was overruled.

The case was adjourned to give the court an opportunity of studying the contract forms between Mr. Rosenberg and the fleet corporation, originally made in Shanghai.

COOPERATION IS ROAD TO PEACE, COOLIDGE SAYS

Urges America To Be Ready To Help At Home And Abroad

(Reuter's American Service)

Chicago, Dec. 4.—President Coolidge in a speech at a luncheon here said that they could no more ensure a stable peace without co-operation among the nations than they could secure victory without alliances. America must constantly be ready to help at home and abroad where aid was desired and where it could be effective.

This Mother Knows Where Wandering Boy Is Tonight

Zang Loh-kung To Spend Three Months In Jail For Carrying Axe

The mother of Zang Loh-kung knows exactly where her wandering boy was last night—and will for the next three months.

Zang, she complained, has been staying out all night and hanging around with the gas-house gang, all of them loafers.

Night before last he was arrested as he sauntered down the street with an axe under his tunic. He told police he was carrying the axe for protection against anything that might need being protected against.

Mixed Court yesterday figured the axe wasn't needed as protection unit and ordered Zang to jail for three months, after which he will be expelled. The axe was confiscated.

Duties Of Consuls Must Be Carried Out, Ruled

Consular officials have certain duties to perform to the public and those must be carried out.

Such was the purport of the decision handed down in the British Consular Court by Judge Sir Skinner Turner yesterday in the case of the Bank of East Asia, Ltd., against Sir James Jamieson, British consul-general at Canton.

The consul-general was sued on his refusal to record the transfer of certain property in Shameen, British concession, to the Bank of East Asia, despite the fact that all shareholders of the bank were British subjects. The shareholders, it was said, are Chinese but subjects of the Crown.

It is expected that an appeal will be made as a 15 day notice or stay of execution was granted.

Sir Jamieson refused to record the transfer of the lot from Mr. Vasania to the bank in August, 1923, acting under instructions from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. He stated the company did not fulfill all conditions necessary to the registration.

A review of the conditions under which Shameen is held as a British concession was given by Sir Skinner Turner. The island, a part of Canton, is held on perpetual lease from the Chinese government. The British government in turn leases the land to private individuals. These leases are known as Crown Leases. They may be transferred.

The lot in question which had first been leased by American citizens was transferred twice before it went to the bank. No consent of the government to the transfers appears in the records.

Hearings on the case were held in October and November.

One feature of the case which developed during the hearing was that since the case was instituted the protection of the Crown over the bank company had been withdrawn. Sir Skinner Turner ruled that this had no effect on the status of the case.

The Court said a mandamus would be issued if necessary.

SELF GOVERNING ARMY RULES IN CITY OF JUCHOW

American Women Missionaries Refused Permission To Depart

(China Press Correspondence)

Huchow, Honan, Dec. 1.—Details have just reached here of the looting of Juchow. When the fighting began in the north it appears that most of the soldier guard was withdrawn from Juchow to join the forces against Chang Tso-lin. Only a few remnants numbering about one hundred men were left behind to guard the city.

On receipt of the news that Wu Pei-fu's forces had suffered defeat at Shanhaikwan those left at Juchow became unmanageable and started looting the city. After pillaging the city more or less completely they loaded their loot on cart and made off for the surrounding hills. No sooner had these left, however, than another contingent arrived purporting to be soldiers numbering about two hundred men under the leadership of Chang, Deh-sheng who became famous as sub-leader under Lan Yang-ren, but was later accepted into the army.

The city officials not suspecting anything admitted them to the city. No sooner had they arrived within the city gates, however, than they began to show their true colors. On meeting opposition on the part of the mandarin and his guard, fighting ensued with the result that the mandarin's forces were overpowered, the mandarin himself was taken prisoner together with the chief men of the city, leaving the would-be soldiers in complete control.

All gates and strategic points are closely guarded and no one is permitted to go in or out of the city. Likewise the gates to the two mission compounds, one in the city and one in the east suburb are closely guarded.

These would-be protectors are masquerading under the high sounding title of "Dzi Gi-guin" or Self-Governing Army and they are continually augmenting their ranks by conscripting men and weapons wherever they can be secured. It is said that the government middle school has been surrounded and all the students forced to take up arms and join the forces of this self-constituted army.

Mrs. J. L. Benson, one of the missionaries in Juchow, writes: "On Sunday morning suddenly from all doors evangelists and servants rushed in, saying the soldiers in the city were futinying. There was not much time to decide what to do so we had to make up our minds in a hurry."

"After picking together hurriedly a few necessaries, Mrs. Benson with her four children and Mrs. Lundeen with her three children and Rev. D. W. Vikner with his son, were soon bundled into the two mission carts and were off for Kiahsien.

On Tuesday afternoon the two men, Messrs. Benson and Lundeen, arrived, having started from Juchow about noon the previous day. They dressed in their poorest clothes, so as to be prepared for any eventuality. All the baggage they carried was a few belongings in a pillow case. Hearing rumors about Kiahsien also being taken they took a northeasterly route intending to go on to Yuehow. Arriving at a large village at nightfall they were well received and provided with lodging for the night. Here they heard that Kiahsien was safe so the next day they pressed on and arrived towards evening, footsore and tired, yet happy to once more be united with their families.

News have been received from the Misses Ingeborg Nystul and Elizabeth Berglund, who are still imprisoned in the city of Juchow. They report that they are well and unmolested though not permitted to leave the city.

The Juchow mission cart was sent back to Juchow with the hopes of providing for the return of the two ladies, but the cart and the two mules were conscripted by the Self-Governing Army when only within a few miles of the city.

'Modern British Fiction' Discussed By Mrs. Davis At Meeting Of A.W.C.

"Modern British Fiction" was the title of the paper read before the Library Department of the American Women's Club yesterday by Mrs. R. W. Davis, and Miss Ruth Benedict gave an interesting talk on "Current Events," dealing chiefly with the outstanding world affairs of November.

Mrs. Davis, in making a short comparative study of her subject and in analysing tendencies in the fiction writing of England, classified her material in the following way; first, books which can be purchased on every book stall, the books of the day, written by living authors; second, the books which were being written a quarter of a century ago; and, third, the fiction of the last century which was read by our fathers.

Beginning with the last-mentioned classification, Mrs. Davis mentioned such authors as Dickens, Thackery, Louis Stevenson, George Eliot, Charles Reade and Blackmore. "Many well-known historical figures are even less real to us than the characters in these novels," she said. "Who does not know Oliver Twist, Pickwick, the Newcomes, Becky Sharp and Rawden Crawley? The books of that day are characterised by their humanity, by their wonderful portrayal of character and of types. The authors were remarkable in their ability to mix humor, passion and pathos in a tale that one could not forget. Dickens tales were of the common people and many of his characters have become part of our common language.

A CHANGE IN TYPE

"In the next class, those books which were written while we were at school, we find a change in type. The authors of that day were Hall Caine and Marie Corelli, Hardy and Meredith, Conan Doyle and Rider Haggard. We find that their works fall naturally into two classes; first, those of a specialised type which concern themselves with moral and religious issues and, second, books of humor and imagination. Those books dealing with moral issues had a great vogue in their day—the publication of a new work by Hall Caine was a momentous event—but their popularity has ceased today. Much of the humorous and imaginative writing of that day has long outlived the more serious times of the now discounted Caine and Corelli school. 'Three Men in a Boat' by Jerome K. Jerome is a classic of its type.

"As for the works of Conan Doyle, the creation of no writer living or dead has enjoyed greater popularity than his well-known classic. This has been translated into more languages than any other book except the Bible and everywhere in the world Sherlock Holmes is known as the detective par excellence.

THE MODERN NOVEL

"In the modern novel which is really the subject of this paper, we find that a new type has been developed. The present day writers may nearly all be classified under two headings, those who are clever and those who are readable. The clever books are written for clever people. If they are not psycho-analytic, they deal with sex questions in morbid detail and cover weary pages in analysing motives and 'isms.' Among these psycho-analysis sex experts are Frank Swinnerton, D. H. Lawrence, W. L. George, Oliver Onions, and Galsworthy and Hutchinson bringing up the rear; and like feeble and discordant echoes of them we have the works of John Paris and such stories as 'Simon Called Peter,' the names of whose authors we rarely bother to ascertain. Many of the novelists whose works place them in this class are models of style and clever craftsmen but the people who proclaim them the greatest writers of the day are often more enamored of their diction and style than of their story; literary hero-worshippers and seekers after strange gods."

In mentioning writers who cannot be easily classified Mrs. Davis selected such names as Rudyard Kipling, Walter de la Mare, J. C. P. Bland (who has specialised in China) and Somerset Maugham. Mr. W. W. Jacobs she classed as one of the greatest writers of the day.

The few authors whom the speaker considered the greatest English novelists of the day are Joseph Conrad, Arnold Bennett, Hugh Walpole and H. G. Wells.

BENNETT AND WALPOLE

"The novels of Arnold Bennett and Walpole appeal both to the definitely literary and to that larger section of the community who like a strongly characterised tale. A new book by Arnold Bennett is still an event to be looked forward to by both the sophisticated and the unsophisticated novel reader.

"The work of Hugh Walpole is not on quite such a grand scale as Bennett's, nor has it the defects that we have particularised. But Walpole's creations are more prone to be types than the men and women of his greater contemporary. They lack individuality through having it too persistently stressed. But Walpole's range is greater.

"Wells is difficult to place in our gallery. His novels are in a class apart. They are not 'straight' but half novels and half tracts. They have a purpose. It is true that if the propaganda be taken away there would still be enough left of the story-teller's craft generously to equip a half dozen ordinary novelists with the materials for success. But with all that it is impossible to define this great imaginative writer as a novelist.

"There are many novelists of note on whose works I have not touched at all," said Mrs. Davis, and in conclusion she read an appreciation of Leonard Merrick, by J. M. Barrie.

CURRENT EVENTS

Miss Benedict, who followed with her paper on "Current Events," dealt with such topics as the recent elections in England and America, the death of Senator Lodge, the political strife in Italy, the conspiracy in Spain against the Directory, the campaign in Morocco against the Riffs, the assassination of the Sirdar in Egypt, and other Egyptian conspiracies.

It is regrettable that space does not permit of a detailed account of each of the events cited by Miss Benedict for she presented not only facts but opinions in her characteristically worth-while manner and gave her audience an excellent summary of the news of the world which, to us here, is necessarily confined to brief cable dispatches while the news is still "hot."

A short business meeting was called for the purpose of electing a new department chairman as Mrs. Ossenbeck is resigning and Mrs. Robertson, vice-chairman, is unable to take up the duties of chairman. Mrs. C. F. McRae was elected chairman by a unanimous vote.

A committee to assist in preparations for the Libby dinner to be given at the Columbia Country Club on January 10 was selected. The members who will serve are: Mesdames Ossenbeck, Upson, Lunt, Kingsbury, Bryant, Dyson, King, Allman, Davis and Brown.

Mrs. Allman will speak at the next regular meeting of the Library Department in January. Her subject will be "Modern Fiction of Spain."

Obituary

MR. WANG HAN-CHEE

A special service in honor of the late Mr. Wang Han Chee, editor of the Sin Wan Pao, will be held at ten o'clock this morning at the family residence near West Gate. The funeral will be held on Sunday morning, December 11 when the remains will be taken to the ancestral hall of the Wang family at Shaowuchin located to the west of Zicawei.

In connection with the funeral service the Sin Wan Pao will publish a special edition on December 11 containing a number of articles written by friends and admirers of Mr. Wang as well as by members of the staff of the paper.

Dr. J. C. Ferguson of Peking, President of the Sin Wan Pao Company, has come to Shanghai to attend the funeral.

"Milestones"

With the Lyceum Theater filled with an appreciative and enthusiastic audience, the players of the British Women's Association, Dramatic Section, acquitted themselves nobly, last night, in their second performance of the none too light play, "Milestones."

With the uneasiness of the first night forgotten, the players obviously settled into a more easy characterization of their parts. The many dramatic parts of the play were somewhat overdone, but, considering the extreme difficulty of correctly limiting the emotions in portraying a more or less melo-dramatic moment, the actors achieved an effect that only professional artists could have improved upon.

The honors for the best characterisation went, without doubt, to Mr. A. Bruce Puddicombe whose interpretation of the part of John Rhead, first as a young man, then at middleage and, finally, as an old man of seventy, was by far the outstanding piece of acting. The part was exceptionally difficult for the most accomplished of artists, but they could hardly have portrayed it more naturally and as competently as did Mr. Puddicombe.

Mrs. J. F. Feely's portrayal of the character of Gertrude Rhead was second only to the acting of Mr. Puddicombe, while Mrs. A. L. Dickson played the part of Mrs. Rhead equally as well.

The character of Arthur Preece as played by Mr. R. M. J. Martin suffered somewhat in the second act because of a faulty make-up; however, Mr. Martin redeemed himself nobly in the last act with a masterly piece of acting which made the fault of his part as the younger Preece seem a minor one.

Mr. John Raikes as Gerald, Lord Monkhurst, succeeded in giving an excellent portrayal of his part but seemed to experience some difficulty in handling the proper account of the character.

The entire company are to be complimented on their excellent handling of an extremely difficult and rather heavy play for amateur production. Mrs. Wingrove and Mrs. Jory deserve to be congratulated on their selection of the cast and their excellent handling of the production.

Splendid Program At Y.W.C.A. Musicale

A large and enthusiastic audience attended the tea musicale given yesterday afternoon at the Foreign Young Women's Christian Association, 19 Yuen Ming Yuen Road. The musical numbers were arranged by Miss Frieda Frommel who, in addition to appearing in two solo numbers which evoked the hearty appreciation from those present, played all of the piano accompaniments for Mme. Olga Telekowski and Mr. Van Heyst, who also appeared on the program.

The afternoon was opened with a vocal solo, Chanson Hindou, Desperance, by Bemberg, which was sung by Mme. Telekowski, with violin obligato by Mr. Van Heyst. Miss Frommel's piano numbers included In Lotusland, by Cyril Scott and Valse in E Minor by Chopin. Mme. Telekowski then sang two more numbers, Do Not Light the Candles, Arensky, and Until, by Sanderson. The program concluded with two violin solos by Mr. Van Heyst, Romanza from Thais by Masse and Hungarian Idyl by Bela.

Gloria Swanson Has French Noble's Love

Paris, Nov. 25.—Another heart—this time that of a French nobleman—has gone the way so many have gone before. All Paris is watching the manner in which the Marquise de Falaise, a true Parisian 'blueblood,' is angling for the heart and hand of Gloria Swanson, the American movie star. The Marquis is seen everywhere with Gloria. When she is at a loss for a word, De Falaise is her interpreter. When Miss Swanson trips down the Rue de la Paix, her latest swain is right by her side. And needless to state, the Marquis is sincerely envied by any number of other noblemen.

A "Dawes Financial plan for China" is the subject of an extensive editorial discussion in this week's issue of the China Weekly Review, out today. In this connection the elements which made the Dawes plan successful in Europe are considered and an attempt is made to apply similar conditions to China. Rear-Admiral W. W. Phelps, former commander of the U. S. Yangtsze Patrol contributes an interesting and significant article to this issue on the subject, "American Policies Toward China," based largely upon his rich experience while helping in the protection of American and other foreign commerce on the Upper Yangtsze. The present Peking situation is covered in an article by Mr. Charles Dailey and in addition the China famine situation comes in for further consideration in articles by Mr. J. E. Baker, co-treasurer and Mr. O. J. Todd, chief engineer of the China International Famine Relief Association at Peking.

Mr. A. Horne delivered a lecture last Thursday before the Shanghai Theosophical Society on the subject "The Story of Atlantis," using lantern slides to illustrate the talk. The lecture was well attended. According to Mr. Horne, Atlantis is the name given in old legends, such as those recorded by Plato, to a great land mass existing in the region of the present Atlantic Ocean, which is believed to have been the home of an ancient civilisation, the parent race of the Mongols and the Red Indians, and in a spiritual sense the ancestors of all later civilisations. A great body of evidence attests the truth of this theory. The lecturer mentioned, inter alia, the results of deep sea soundings in the Atlantic, and described the remarkable similarity between the monuments, customs and beliefs of Mexico with those of Europe and Egypt, all indicating, in the strongest way, the former existence of a land connection across the ocean and a common origin of peoples now widely separated.

Peking Is Stirred By Murder Of Shensi Envoy

Undercurrents At Capital And Tientsin Show That All Is Not Yet Going Well

BY LAWRENCE IMPEY
(Special to The China Press)

Peking, Dec. 1.—Statements issued to the press by the various political factions and interests here are intended to create the impression that all is well in the capital and that a period of peace and plenty is about to come in the land of the Chinese Republic.

But there are indications that all is not going so well and that something sensational may happen at any time. Underneath this surface understanding, which the propagandists tell about, run deep and dangerous channels of political plots and counterplots that only a very few isolated circumstances serve to indicate as a national danger. Let us take two or three instances in chronological order.

From Nagasaki there arrived in Tientsin the notorious Ataman Semenoff, imported, according to report, by Japanese interests, for it may be doubted if his own personal business or financial conditions would bring him so far afield, and it has been well known for some time that he was being carefully nursed for some political purpose or other. For a week or more this gentleman resides in a Japanese hotel in the Japanese Concession, where no one was permitted, to see him, all visitors being skilfully headed off on one pretext or another. Notwithstanding this seclusion he manages, according to popular rumors, to visit Chang Tso-lin's headquarters, and to have dinner on two occasions with a certain Consul-General, vanishing from the scene as suddenly as he had appeared, no one being certain as to whether he departed for Peking, Mukden, or Japan.

It was suggested that one reason for his visit was to nominate him for the command of the Russian Legion under Marshal Chang Tso-lin, General Nechaieff being reported as persona non grata but if this was the case the manoeuvre met with no success, for the Mukden Warlord has expressed his entire satisfaction with the manner in which General Nechaieff has conducted his duties, and there seems little likelihood that he will be superseded in the near future. When one remembers that the Bolsheviki have arrested most of the prominent White Russians connected with the Chinese Eastern Railway and that any development of these interests in Chang Tso-lin's territories must be inimical to Japanese projects it would seem that they would be willing to support any Russian of the old regime who should attain favor at Mukden, so that they may have had totally different intentions as to the future uses of Semenoff, though undoubtedly they would be connected in some way with plans for the discomforture of the Soviet.

SOVIET TACTICS

As far as political maneuvres in Peking are concerned the worthy Soviet Ambassador appears to be still pinning his faith on General Feng Yu-hsiang, in spite of the fact that Dr. C. T. Wang is no longer Foreign Minister, which must be a sore blow to him. For although many of the publicists persist in proclaiming that the Christian General is a spent force, the writer is not altogether of this opinion. It must be remembered that he still commands the largest single body of efficient troops in the vicinity of Peking.

That Chang Tso-lin himself is by no means happy about the situation is shown by the manner in which both he and Tuan have been requesting General Feng to reconsider his retirement, sending urgent messengers to his headquarters outside the city and inviting him to visit them to discuss pressing affairs. It was only yesterday that General Feng was persuaded to pay one of these desired visits to Chang Tso-lin, but it was apparent that he had no intention of trusting himself too fully to his host's hospitality, for at the same time that he entered the city it was arranged that young General Chang Hsueh-liang should pay a visit of inspection to General Feng's troops outside, in company with the Mukden Chief of Staff. This was chronicled in the press as a mere courtesy, but it can have deceived no one who was studying the real political situation, for it was palpable that the Super-Tuchun's son was simply acting as a hostage for his father's guest.

DELEGATE ASSASSINATED

That all is not well with General Feng Yu-hsiang's plans also was indicated by an occurrence in the capital on the evening of the 28th, when a Chinese delegate from General Hu Ching-yi was assassinated just outside the Peking Hotel. The writer happened to be in the vicinity and was on the scene of the murder less than five minutes after it occurred, before the Chinese police had had time to collect their wits and decide what sort of a story to tell to interested enquirers. It seemed that the deceased was a delegate of the Shensi General authorised to negotiate on his behalf in Peking and Tientsin, the police authorities themselves admitting this fact.

He had undoubtedly come from outside Chien Men just prior to his murder, as was evidenced by the testimony of his ricsha boy, but the police suggested that the assassination was due to some quarrel anent feminine interests, a story which seems hardly credible under the circumstances. The murdered officer had been dining at a Chinese hotel with a representative of the Mukden party, according to the information which your correspondent obtained, and when he left the Chien Men area he was undoubtedly followed by his assailants, two soldiers of the National People's Army. To one who knows the ground it is quite obvious that this was no unpremeditated crime, for an attack in the crowded streets near Chien Men would possibly have been unsuccessful and would certainly have resulted in the arrest of the assailants. But by tracking their victim up into the Tartar City they were enabled to approach him in the deserted space in front of the Peking Hotel, which has the Glacis on one side and a stretch of waste ground and trees on the other, while the road is none too well lit hereabouts.

FIRE AND FLEE

Both men fired their revolvers twice and then fled into the surrounding darkness, leaving the police picket to find nothing but the dead man lolling in his ricsha and attended by his coolie, whom they promptly arrested. Up to date no other arrests have been made and no further elucidation of the mystery offered to the public, but the history of the tragedy as the writer would reconstruct it is as follows. The delegate of General Hu Ching-yi, who it must be remembered is a supporter of Feng Yu-hsiang up to the present time, was approached by emissaries of the Mukden or Japanese factions who desired to detach the General from his Christian leader. A dinner at one of the numerous Chinese hotels outside Chien Men was arranged to consolidate the negotiations. The possible defection of the Shensi brigand chief became known, and two messengers were detailed by Feng's supporters to prevent the deal being concluded, though it may be doubted whether precise instructions as to the method would be given to them, as in the event of an arrest being made it might be necessary to disown both them and their works.

It remains to be seen whether this is only a spark which indicates an imminent conflagration, for the apprehensions shown by the Chinese might lead one to suppose that yet another coup d'etat was in the making, with General Feng Yu-hsiang as the chief protagonist.

Scant Loot Gained By Armed Robbers

Armed robbers, after a brief period of idleness following upon many successful police raids, have apparently resumed operations in the Settlement again.

Four men, one of whom was armed with a pistol and another with an axe, entered a general store at 253 Paoting Road and stole $1 and 300 coppers.

As the men were leaving, a neighbor of the shopkeeper caught the two robbers who were unarmed but was unable to hold them until assistance arrived.

American Women's Club Notes

Final arrangements have been completed for the Tea Dance and Bridge Party to be given at the Majestic Hotel on Tuesday, December 9, under the auspices of the Social Department of the American Women's Club. Many surprises are in store for those who attend this affair and from such information as the Chairman is willing to give out, it will be well worth while to wait for these surprises.

Misses Purdy, Fleming and Arnold are in charge of the dancing, and the following patronesses have been named; Mrs. Edwin S. Cunningham, Mrs. Milton D. Purdy, Dr. Annie Walter Fearn, Mrs. W. L. Merriman.

Tickets may be obtained from club members or from the following special committee; Mrs. Verne Dyson (W. 3030), Mrs. R. J. Tomlinson (W. 747), and Mrs. F. W. Poate (W. 2727). Mrs. C. E. Van Bergen has charge of tea table reservations (C. 3246), and Mrs. P. L. Bryant (W. 2761) is in charge of the bridge and mah jongg tables.

The program of the Music Department scheduled for December 9 has been postponed owing to the Tea Dance and Bridge being given by the Social Department. The next meeting of the Music Department will be announced at a later date.

The Art Department will hold its usual Wednesday morning sketching classes on December 10 from 9 to 12 a.m.

On Friday, the 12th, the Literary Department will meet to hear a paper on the "Decline of the Mings" which will be presented by Mrs. J. Scott Emens. This is an open meeting and all members and friends are invited.

Five-Year-Old Boy Kidnaped From Home

Kidnapping of a five-year-old boy from the home of his parents in Hai Tsong Road, Chapei, is reported in the Chinese press. According to the press versions of the affair, four men drove up to the boy's home in a motor car and enticed him to go with them. He has not been seen since. The boy's father failed to report the matter to the Chinese authorities.

Australian Cricket Team Plays M.C.C. XI At Brisbane

(Reuter's Service)

Brisbane, December 4.—A match between M. C. C. and An Australian Eleven commenced today in pleasant weather before a gathering of 3,000 spectators. The wicket was perfect.

At the close of the day's play the Australian Eleven who batted first had made 299 runs for 5 wickets, of which score Ponsford contributed 81, Hendry 68 and O'Connor 50.

(Reuter's Service)

Brisbane, Dec. 5.—The Match between the M. C. C. and an Australian eleven was resumed today. Three thousand persons were present. The weather was beautiful and the wicket perfect.

The Australians were all out for 526. Thompson scored 114 in a sound innings including seven 4's and lasting about three and a half hours. Taaffe contributed 36 not out in an unenterprising innings.

Freeman took 6 wickets for 160.

The innings lasted slightly over 9 hours.

The M. C. C. had scored 4 runs without the loss of a wicket when stumps were drawn.

The match is a four-day one, lasting until Monday.

NAVY FIVE BEATS VOLUNTEER TEAM, 35 POINTS TO 12

Rowing Club Again Fails To Have Teams Ready For Games On Own Floor

In a scrappy game played at the Pavilion last night, the Volunteers were defeated by the Navy, represented by the quintet from U. S. S. Penguin. The final score was 35-12.

In the first quarter both teams played a close game. Webster netted one for the Navy after a hard play, but Tinkham soon tied up the score. Albert dropped in a nice shot, but Heningsen made the count even again. The play was close, and rough at times. Toward the end of the first quarter Webster put through another field goal, making the score 6-4.

The second quarter was opened by Webster again with a fine shot, after some minutes of hard play. Then Tinkham, who was playing well in his guard position, ran up all the way to the other end and dropped in an easy one. Enders then tied up the score with a splendid shot but that was all the Volunteers did last night. They all at once broke to pieces, and the gobs rolled up the score until the score stood 15-8 at the end of the second quarter.

SAILORS' FAST GAME

Immediately after the gong of the third quarter, Foret opened the firing and the sailors went wild, registering five more goals and holding the Volunteers scoreless. The Volunteers tired considerably, and were unable to check the fast, well-combining gobs. The Navy started the final quarter with two field goals, then Porterfield woke up and contributed two goals from the floor for the Volunteers. The winners then scored two more goals, and the game ended with the score 35 to 12.

The Navy five played a good, aggressive game all through, and deserved to win. Webster was the individual star of the game, and got nine goals.

The Volunteers' team work was not what it should be, and their shooting was poor. They put up a fair fight in the first half, but then went to pieces

The score:

Penguin 35		Volunteers 12
Albert, Dawson	r.f.	Enders, Erickson
Webster	l.f.	Porterfield
Counts, Foret	c.	Heningsen
Dale	r.g.	Portrude, Hahmmacher
Rogers, Counts	l.g.	Tinkham

Goals from floor: Webster 9; Albert 4; Dawson, Foret, Tinkham, Porterfield 2 each, Enders, Heningsen 1 each.

Goals from foul: Albert 1.

Referee: Dr. Gray.

R. C. GAMES OFF

Two games were scheduled for the Rowing Club floor last evening, but though the visiting teams, the Orioles and the Portuguese respectively, were on hand, neither of the Rowing Club's teams were there. It is not at all complimentary to the Rowing Club that their teams should have scheduled matches on their own floor, but not be on hand to meet the visitors. This is the second time the Bowside team has been scheduled to play. Last Monday they were to have met the Machine Gunners, but failed to turn up, though Strokeside played, losing to Scott Company.

Every other team in the League so far has kept to its scheduled appointments. Only the Rowing Club teams, who have the advantage of playing on their own centrally-located floor, are so utterly negligent of keeping to the schedule of the League they have entered. Something is wrong somewhere, as it is difficult to imagine that the players as individuals would be guilty of such discourtesy as is evidenced in failing to meet visitors they are due to play on the Rowing Club floor.

In the absence of the home teams the Portuguese and the Orioles staged a practice game on the floor last night, the Orioles having the best of it. The Portuguese played with a little more spirit, and put up a better exhibition than at the Pavilion the other night. With a bit more courage, and some development of headwork and team play, they may round into a good team yet.

For the Orioles it was interesting to see Kabelitz on the floor. It was thought he would be unable to play for a little while, but he came out last night and showed himself to be in good shape again, an important addition to the team.

National Football Field Reserved By Polytechnic School

The National Football Field of the National Recreation Grounds, in the French Concession, has been reserved by the Polytechnic Public School for Chinese, at 2:30 p.m. each Saturday for the following weeks: December 3, 13, 20 and January 3.

This field, wrongly termed the Pioneer Mud Field, which in the past has been open for free unreserved use by any who cared to take advantage of it, will in the future be closed except when reserved specifically in advance by groups desiring to use the ground. For such reservations teams desiring to use the field will kindly secure advanced permission from J. H. Gray or the man in charge at the Basketball Pavilion.

WORLD'S FINEST GOLF LINKS SAID TO BE IN AMERICA

Walter Hagen's Opinion; Lido National And Whitemarsh Courses

As playing supremacy in golf is steadily passing from England to the United States so is the art of course construction. The boast of the Britons that their seaside links are the greatest in the world is less seldom heard, and in fact the famous old English championship courses excel now only in tradition.

The three leading American links are Lido, at Long Beach; Whitemarsh, Philadelphia, and the National Links, Southampton, England has nothing to match these links, not even Gleneagles in Scotland, one of the newest and considered the best test of golf in the British Isles.

Discussing the merits of courses on both sides of the ocean with Walter Hagen, the holder of the British title said that people abroad are amazed at the amount of money Americans spend on golf, particularly for the construction of links. According to Hagen, Americans are more progressive and are willing to make frequent changes in course architecture, while the Britons are satisfied to stand pat with their courses.

Many English courses are located at the seaside and the elements furnish most of the obstacles. Because of the overhead bunkers the actual laying out of the playing surface represented but a small expenditure of money. It was only in late years that piping was laid under English courses so that the green could be waterd at frequent intervals.

In marked contrast to the usual English system, American courses have been built with little thought to the cost. In many cases miniature hills and lakes have been constructed to add variety to the golf layout. For instance, a great sand waste at Lido was magically transformed into one of the finest courses in the country, at an expense of one million dollars.

Earle Sande Retires

Earl Sande, greatest American jockey, has ridden his last race. Sande, who has just left the hospital, stated that he has decided to give up riding, and henceforth his connection with the turf will be as a trainer of thoroughboreds.

For weeks previous to his fall at Saratoga, when he suffered a badly fractured leg, he realized that for the good of his health it would be best either to quit riding and train horses, or go abroad where the weight scale is much higher than it is in the United States, to ride.

Sande was growing heavier by the hour. He found it hard to get down to 118 pounds. Even to make that high mark he had to take plenty of steam baths and and spend many an hour doing roadwork. Now, after weeks, on his back, he realises that if he started training again he would be lucky to make 125 pounds.

He has had numerous offers to ride in France and England. He doesn't want to quit riding, but he doesn't want to leave the United States and neither does his wife, who is a nice of Sam Hildreth, trainer of the Rancocas stable. Hence Sande's intention to apply next spring for a trainer's license.

BASKETBALL TONIGHT

There are no games in the Foreign Basketball League here tonight, but the two strongest teams in the Chinese League are due to play at the Pavilion. They are matched with opponents who are likely to be easy for them, however, the All-Whites, last year's champions, going up against the Y.M.C.A. Day School, not a very strong aggregation, while the Fuh Tan University team will play the All-Blacks, also a rather weak team. Both the All-Whites and the Fuh Tan quintets have easily defeated most of the foreign teams they have met during the past year, and their basketball play is of a high order.

The game between the Day School and the All-Whites is due to start at 7 p.m., and that between Fuh Tan and the All-Blacks at 8 p.m., at Pioneer Pavilion.

Shanghai College Play S. John's In Intercollegiate Match

This afternoon at 2.30 St. John's University footballers are to meet Shanghai College on the latter's ground. This match will undoubtedly be the best Inter-collegiate Match of the Season, neither one of these teams having been defeated. St. John's has a slightly higher goal average than Shanghai College, but Shanghai will have the advantage of playing on its own ground, so this afternoon the play should be fairly even.

Mr. R. W. York will referee the match. Admission of 20 cents small money will be charged and 40 cents small money for those desiring seats.

Hockey

The following will represent the "A" team of the Portuguese Sporting Association in a League Match against the Shanghai Hockey Club today at 3 p.m. on the Cricket Club Grounds:—J. Almeida, R. SHANGHAI MATCH WITH "HAWKINS" THIS AFTERNOON

No Games In Division 1; St. Xavier's Play Navy In Second League

FOOTBALL TODAY!

The official fixtures for today are as follows:—

FIRST DIVISION

Nil

SECOND DIVISION

Shanghai Football Club v. Police Recreation Club.—S. R. C. ground. Referee, Mr. Jacobs.

Shanghai Recreation Club v. Portuguesee S. A.—S. F. C. ground.

St. Xaviers F. C. v. Navy.—Police ground. Referee, Mr. Gray.

Hanbury School F. C. v. Jewish Recreation Club.—Hongkew Park. Referee, Mr. de Campos.

Public School v. Deutscher Fussball Club. — Hongkew Park. Referee, Mr. Leitao.

FRIENDLY MATCH

Shanghai v. H.M.S. Hawkins, at Pioneer Field, today 3 p.m. Referee, W. C. G. Clifford.

INTERCOLLEGIATE GAMES

St. John's University vs. Shanghai College, at Yangtszepoo. Kick-off at 2.30.

Nanyang University vs. Soochow University.—To be played on Soochow University Ground, Soochow.

The First Division football games which it was intended to play for this afternoon have been postponed to a later date, and a Shanghai team is going to play the football team from the British ship, Hawkins, which is said to have the strongest naval football team in the Orient, on Pioneer Field. As already reported in our columns, Shanghai is to send a team to Hankow during the Christmas holidays. Today's team will be probably not much different from that which will represent Shanghai on this trip. It is chosen from the players in last week's Interport Trial match, and consists of the following players: Remedios, Ewing and E. Turner; Tordy, Crawford and Gowan, T. Madar, Collaco, Goldman, Coulcher and J. Johanssen. Reserves: Sluis, H. Turner, Falconer, Moosa, G. Johanssen and Costa.

This is expected to show some excellent play, and a considerable crowd will probably be present to see it.

SECOND DIVISION GAMES

The most important match in the Second Division to date will be played between the St. Xavier and the Navy team this afternoon. Both these teams are showing a standard of play this season which marks them as properly belonging in the First Division. They are now leading their own division, the Navy having won four games straight, but having been beaten by the Germans last Saturday, while the St. Xavier players have won three straight and have had but one goal scored against them. The match will be played at the Widow's Monument Ground, at the Race Course. St. Xavier's will be represented by the following players:

F. Peterson, T. Allen, T. Hart, A. Collaco, R. Favacho, H. Cortereal, T. Alexandra, T. Aldeguer, P. Oliveiros, H. Hyndman, A. Souza, Reserve: J. Cruz.

SCHOOL vs. GERMANS

Another game with real possibilities is that between the Public School and the Germans this afternoon. The Public School team has done excellent work this season, having won their first three games one after the other, and now being third in the League. The Germans are a new team, which is gradually rounding into excellent shape. They have had a couple of set-backs, but defeated the Navy team, whom many pick as Second Division champions, last Saturday. If they continue at this pace they will be formidable contenders for Second Division honors.

This game will be played at Hongkew Park.

HANBURY vs. JEWISH R. C.

The three other games in the Second Division should be well contested. Hanbury School is playing the Jewish Recreation Club at Hongkew Park.

The following will represent the Hanbury School: W. Ferguson, T. Sofoulis, W. Naughton, C. Brown, F. Whittsack, B. Schwartz, P. Brown, A. Senna, J. C. McDonald, J. R. McDonald and T. Symons. Reserves: H. Harvey and A. Parker.

The following will represent the Jewish club: J. Goobin, Blumenthal, C. Fuxman, F. C. Hale, F. V. David, W. Ismond, K. Goskewitch, A. Ellers, W. Kossolopoff, E. Whitgob, F. Fingold, Reserve; S. Godkin, S. Abolnik.

POLICE VS. S. F. C.

The Football Club 2d will meet the Police on the Recs grounds.

The following have been selected to play for the Police; Hotchkiss, Robinson, Pridmore, MacDonald, Munson, McGregor, Phillips, Read, Wayson (captain), Ling and Jones.

The following have been selected to represent the Shanghai Football Club.—G. C. Large, M. Tonkin, A. Loonis, L. F. Payne, G. J. Day, L. F. Stokes, A. Deer, T. A. Cooper, J. R. Nooley, A. L. Whittaker and A. V. White. Reserves: E. C. D. Andrews, H. H. Nash, P. T. O'Neill. Linesman, E. C. D. Andrews.

P. S. A. vs. RECS

The Recs 2d will play the Portuguese on the Widow's Monument ground.

The following will represent the P. S. A.—D. Sequeira, J. Lima, A. Gonsalves, M. Sequeira, H. Ribeiro, V. Xavier, C. Castro, M. Ferreira, F. Gutierrez, J. Silva and G. Sequeira. Reserve, V. Costa.

S. R. C. will be represented by: Moalem, Quincey, Griffith, Smith, Marshall, S. Emamoodeu, Potehunt, Carlson, P. Madar, J. Brockett and Hayward. Reserves: Tipton, Petterson, Wilson.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB AFFILIATES WITH INTERNATIONAL

Shanghai Body To Promote Other Branches In China

The Y's Men's Club of Shanghai has been admitted to membership to the International Association of Y's Men's Clubs, the headquarters of which are at Toledo, Ohio. In a letter of welcome to Mr. Wm. Yinson Lee, president of the Shanghai organisation, Mr. P. W. Alexander, the retiring president of the international organisation, states that the Y's Men's Club of Shanghai will be regarded as the Central Organisation for the whole of China with power to transmit recommendations for other clubs to be formed as it has been decided to make the local Club the nucleus of a widespread chain of similar organisations throughout the country.

The Y's Men's Club is a supporter of the Y.M.C.A. movement and has for its objects the securing for Shanghai continuous advancement along all avenues of commercial, industrial and social activity, for the promotion of the public good generally on non-political and non-sectarian lines, for the cultivation of international friendship, and encouraging and assisting all civil and national movements of a constructive nature. In order to carry out its objects, active public-spirited citizens are enrolled into membership with certain restrictions, a pride of country is instilled into them and they are inspired to encourage a similar sentiment in other members of the community.

The membership of the Shanghai organisation is representative of Chinese professional, financial, commercial, and industrial interests and members meet every Monday at the Carlton Cafe at tiffin where discussions are held very much after the manner of Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs in other parts of the world. The slogan of the Club is "Fellowship, Culture, Service."

Mrs. Lofting Wins Shanghai Ladies' Golf Championship

Mrs. J. H. Lofting won the final of the Shanghai Ladies' Golf Championship at Kiangwan yesterday, defeating Mrs. C. H. Ryde 10 up and 9 to play. A strong wind interfered with play, but both players did well in spite of it. Mrs. Lofting played a steady game throughout. At the end of the first eighteen holes she was 5 up, and continued to add to her lead until the end of the play.

In addition to winning this championship, Mrs. Lofting is also competing for that of the Hungjao Ladies' Golf Club. She is due to meet Mrs. Burton in the Hungjao championship finals next Wednesday and may distinguish herself by winning both championships.

Bertrand Russell Flunks Mind Test

London, Nov. 25.—"I would abolish respect for learning," said Bertrand Russell, mathematician and author, lecturing before the Fabian Society tonight. "If learning were common and widespread there would be no respect for it. There is no nation in the world where artists are so respected and so rare as in the United States."

Russell denied the value of intelligence tests as employed in the American Army during the war, and since then in some American universities. "I found myself unable to pass them," admitted the former Cambridge professor, who declared that the tests demanded mental agility rather than any real intelligence.

NATIONAL BOXING COMMISSION FOR U. S. PROJECTED

Enforcement Of Rules By Referees; Question Of Fouling

In the opinion of no less an authority than Robert Edgren, boxing is not going to last in the United States unless referees enforce the rules, and boxing needs a national commission to pass on the qualifications of referees as well as fighters. Many bouts in the ring are handled by referees who either don't know the rules of boxing or are not game enough to enforce them.

As boxing is conducted now in many states, says Edgren, a boxer can be suspended for refusing to meet an opponent selected by a commission, or for refusing to go on with a match already arranged. In some rare cases boxers are disciplined for outrageous infractions of the rules that are supposed to govern all boxing contests, but usually so little is thought of this trifling matter that they are soon reinstated.

Referees are seldom suspended, if ever, and almost invariably the referee is as much at fault as the offending boxer in cases of fouling.

The referee is in entire control of the bout. There is no possibility of continual fouling if a referee does his duty. Any attempt on the part of a boxer to break the rules and strike unfair blows, hold, wrestle or disable his man by use of a trick barred by the rules should result in instant disqualification. In case of an evidently accidental foul the referee should use his judgment and disqualify the offender if the blow might have any effect on the outcome of the contest. In any case, the offending boxer should be disqualified if the offense is repeated.

BETTER REFEREEING IN OLD DAYS

There was better refereeing before there were any state boxing commissions. In the old days the boxers and their managers and the promoters usually selected the referee. A referee who hoped to continue acting as referee had to guard his reputation and be scrupulously fair and impartial. There was a lot of betting on bouts, and he had to guard the rights of the public as well as the boxers. The purses were always divided with a winner's and a loser's end, so the referee had to enforce the rules of boxing. Men like George Siler and Charlie White, famous referees years ago were in great demand as referees in championship contests, because they were known to be fair and fearless. A timid or incompetent referee didn't last long in those days.

Today in many instances politicians select the referees. Boxers contract for stated sums for their fights, and there is no loser's end or winner's end. The whole idea is to make the affair a show like a theatrical performance—a mere entertainment for the crowd.

It is taken for granted that the crowd wants to see a bout go "all the way" unless there is a knockout—wants to "get its money's worth." Consequently there are many boxers who figure just how far they can go in taking unfair advantages in the ring, in breaking the rules, and with most referees that is a long, long way. The referee has his eyes on the bout and his mind on what the crowd will say if he enforces the rules. Perhaps the politician who had him appointed is interested in the promotion. He thinks of that, too.

The last of the old-time referees was Charlie White. Leach Cross and Onesound Hogan met in a New York ring. White gave his instructions. They were to "break clean" at the order of the referee. Both persistently hugged and pounded away in clinches after being ordered to break. White warned them. Used to referees who talked and did nothing, they paid no attention to White's orders. In the middle of the first round White disqualified them both and left the ring, and there was a near riot. Cross and Hogan were famous knockout artists. The crowd wanted to see knockdowns and a knockout. It had no interest in the rules or White's old-fashioned notion that rules must be enforced. White never refereed another fight. Since his time few referees have had the nerve to stop any bout in the early rounds because of fouling.

VILLA VS. WILDE

Pancho Villa wouldn't have become the world's flyweight champion, in Edgren's opinion, if the rules had been strictly enforced. In the first round of his fight with Jimmy Wilde, Villa showed that he outclassed the little Englishman in speed and strength, and that Wilde had little chance to win. However, Wilde walked into Villa, refused to retreat, and stood up to a hard beating. His age showed. He seemed unable to start. Or perhaps he was waiting for a sure opening. Just before the end of the second round Villa was hitting Wilde so fast and hard that it was a wonder he stood up, unwavering. The bell rang. Villa had pulled his right hand back to deliver a swinging blow. He seemed to hesitate. Wilde dropped his hands and half turned toward his corner, when Villa suddenly let the right go, landing squarely on Wilde's chin. Wilde went down, knocked cold. The blow landed about a second after the bell. Probably Villa didn't hear the bell. Wilde's seconds carried him, unconscious, to his corner and worked over him about half a minute before he woke up.

That blow after the bell settled Wilde's chances.

HOW JAPANESE DO NOT PLAY BALL: A WEIRD RECITAL

Penalizing Pitchers' Base-Runners; War-Whoop; Applause For Errors

An amusing story appears in a Manila newspaper, under the expressive heading of "Japan Love Base Ball," which is apparently composed by either a prize humorist, a reincarnated Ananias, or a combination of the two. The most interesting items are the discovery that the Japanese greet with a wave of applause a fumble or a muff, and that Japanese pitchers let out a war-whoop as they deliver the ball, this latter sometimes being varied by a call to solidarity, "Are you with me?" to which his musical team-mates in chorus, are supposed to respond. "To a man." The extraordinary story told by this twentieth century Munchausen, whose name is not affixed (presumably through modesty) to this strange composition, we give in full below:

JAPAN LOVE BASE BALL

Pitchers' Utter War Cry Before Delivering Ball

Tsingtao, Shantung, China.—The Japanese love baseball with an undying affection. A crowd of 5,000 spectators is a common occurence, and frequently 7,000 to 8,000 people cover the sides of the natural amphitheatre in Tsingtao where the ball-tossers perform.

The Japanese play the game conservatively; the dislike taking long chances and abhor wild baserunning. One of the fastest outfielders in the Tsingtao aggregation, who formerly played the tendency toward risky base-stealing and consequently is kept safe-ly on the bench where his example will not upset his mates.

As a rule the fans are intensely loyal, and they could teach American crowds a few lessons in sportsmanlike behavior. They look upon "razzing" as something that isn't done. The Japanese are considerate of the feelings of others and to "razz" a player would be unpardonable. For the most part a crowd of Japanese spectators maintains a funeral silence, but it will burst into a salvo of applause without rhyme or reason. Sometimes a player receives a consoling wave of handclapping after making a mess of a grounder or muffing a high fly. A long foul ball, almost fair, frequently moves the crowd to a display of sympathy.

Japanese pitchers have a habit of uttering a war cry as they deliver the ball. This is supposed to help the morale of the team. Sometimes the twirler shouts the equivalent in Japanese of, "Are you with me?" to which the players reply, "To a man."

It is customary to present a huge wreath of flowers to the winning team, and it is not uncommon to see an ornate silver cup presented to the winner of a single contest. Hundreds of dollars are spent on prizes, and awards to players including all sorts of merchandise, clothing and jewelry.

"OVER THE HILL"

Tells a story as old as life itself and as new as the present moment. It is a story of mother love divine—of beautiful sacrifice suffered uncomplainingly and finally rewarded. A cinema masterpiece that plays upon the human emotions, producing laughter, tears, thrills and spasmodic applause at will.

Wills Fortune To Couple Who Gave Him 'Real Home'

New York, Nov. 18.—A lonely man's gift of more than $500,000 to a family that gave him a "real home" was disclosed yesterday when the appraisal of the estate of Robert B. Hawley, President of the Cuban American Sugar Company, was filed, showing that shortly before his death and by his will he enriched Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Learned of 36 Gramercy Park, and their son, Bruce. Mr. Learned is an artist.

Mr. Hawley described his feelings for the Learneds in his will when he said that the gifts were "in token of my respect and affection and in appreciation of their kindness in giving me a real home and otherwise befriending me during my loneliness in a great city."

Mr. Hawley, who died at the Learned home on Nov. 28, 1921, of acute indigestion at the age of 72 years, left an estate appraised at a gross of $1,832,209, but because of debts of $583,565 and othed deductions the net was only $1,119,623. The appraisal discloses, however, that within two years before his death Mr. Hawley gave away property amounting to $813,431, a large part of which went to the Learned family.

The will gave $272,591 as half the residuary estate and $100,000 each for like to Mr. Hawley's grandsons, Hawley Oakes and John C. Oakes Jr., the two children of Colonel John C. Oakes, U. S. A., of Governors Island. Colonel Oakes married Mr. Hawley's only daughter, Sue, and after her death he remarried. He was not mentioned in the will, but made an affidavit explaining trust deeds made by Mr. Hawley in 1917 for Colonel Oakes's sons. He said that he was about to sail for duty overseas with his command, and Mr. Hawley asked him what could be done that would "make him feel easier." Colonel Oakes stated that if Mr. Hawley would create the two trust funds of $100,000 each for his sons so that he could leave his own small estate to his present wife, he would be grateful.

THE GIFTS TO THE LEARNED

The will naming the members of the Learned family gave Mr. Learned the contents of Mr. Hawley's apartment in their home valued at $690, and $50,000 in cash. He left a similar amount to Mrs. Learned, and gave $10,000 in cash and 1,000 shares of the Central Aguirre Sugar Company, valued at $66,750 to their son Bruce. The appraisal showed that in the property having a total value of $513,437, which Mr. Hawley gave away several years before his death, was $10,137 in French bonds and $5,675 in sugar stock to Mrs. Learned; 20,000 shares of Cuban-American sugar stock, valued at $292,500, to Mr. and Mrs. Learned; sugar stock worth $29,250 to their son Bruce, and 278 shares of Gramercy Park Club stock, valued at $34,750, to Mrs. Learned. The total is $557,712.

The trust funds executed by Mr. Hawley for his two grandsons consisted of $136,000 in cash and Cuban-American sugar stock worth $428,500.

Mr. Hawley was a native of Tennessee and before he was of age was compelled to support his mother, sister and brother. He went to Galveston, Tex., and opened a store, later going into sugar ventures in Cuba. The bulk of his estate consists of sugar stock, including the following: 3,060 shares of the Central Aguirre Sugar Company, $173,655; 54,970 shares of Cuban-American sugar, common, $803,936, and 6,026 shares preferred stock, $482,080. An interest in the Cuban Dominican Sugar Development Syndicate was valued at $257,500.

The will gave $25,000 each to the Y. M. C. A. and the Salvation Army, of Galveston, in memory of his daughter, Sue. He left $25,000 to Harry Hawley, a nephew, and $40,000 each to his brother, Joseph, and a sister, Mrs. L. G. Williams. He gave $12,000 each in trust to Mary R. Crane and Ashley Fly, friends.

TESTIMONIAL FROM MENOCAL

An affidavit by former President Menocal of Cuba, filed for the purpose of proving that Mr. Hawley had no expectation of death at the time he gave away a large part of his estate, and that he had always been in good health, said that President Menocal had known him intimately since 1900, and that together they had developed the sugar industry at Chapparo, Cuba. President Menocal added:

"I never knew a man who devoted so much time and energy to his work, for he took his duties much to heart and devoted his life to work for others. He often discussed business with me until 3 a.m. He had vitality to stand a strain which would have killed half a dozen weaker men. The only time I ever knew him to be ill was when he fell from a horse and broke four ribs, and then he insisted on walking around, and traveled to New York in that condition."

Ex-President Menocal said that Mr. Hawley brought the Learneds to Cuba with him in 1912, at which time Mr. Learned made portraits of the Menocal family. "He introduced them as his children," said President Menocal, "and spoke of the home where he had found happiness after having lived a lonely life in hotels. He cared for few people but loved them dearly. He had no regard for a fortune for himself."

The affidavit stated that Mr. Hawley had been appointed a member of the Government Commission to move the Cuban sugar crop of 1920-1921, and "devoted great energies to that world. President Menocal said he did not believe Mr. Hawley could have achieved what he did unless he had been in the best of health.

Gen. Kung Planning Round-Up Of Arms

A notification by General Kung Paung-tu, Nanking's appointee for the defense commissionership of Shanghai and Sungkiang, that he would pay for arms and ammunition surrendered at his yamen within twenty days has so far failed to elicit any great response despite the fact that the expiration of the twenty-day period is near at hand. General Kung has accordingly established a detective office, and it is indicated that after the twenty days expire a vigorous search will be made for contraband arms.

ACTORS CONSUME CAKES IN THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Nov. 17.—A group of American actors under the leadership of Al Jolson, John Drew and Raymond Hitchcock, trooped into the White House today, had breakfast with President and Mrs. Coolidge, and entertained their hosts later with fun, frolic and music on the lawn of the White House. Their visit was one of the gayest incidents in the campaign.

Thirty-old stars arrived at the White House not long before 9 o'clock, after an all-night ride from New York, and sat down to an old-fashioned New England breakfast of sausage and hot cakes. The delegation came under the direction or the Coolidge Non-Partisan League, of which Colonel Rhinelander Waldo is President, to assure Mr. Coolidge of their support in the Presidential campaign.

President and Mrs. Coolidge met their guests on the threshold of the White House.

"I have met you all across the footlights," Mrs. Coolidge said, "but it's not the same as greeting you here. Let's go into breakfast."

President Coolidge contented himself with leading one partner Charlotte Greenwood—into the state dining room, where the breakfast was served. Mrs. Coolidge took the arm of Colonel Waldo and just then spied Al Jolson.

"Let me take your arm, too," she remarked. "I want two partners for this occasion."

HITCHCOCK TALKS, JOLSON SINGS

Raymond Hitchcock entertained the company with a discussion of economics at breakfast and later on the lawn made what he called a campaign speech. The breakfast lasted for more than an hour and the company adjourned to the lawn and was photographed. Here Mr. Hitchcock made his little speech and Al Jolson sang his song, "Keep Coolidge," in which Mrs. Coolidge and all the guests joined.

The Al Jolson song follows:

The race is now begun
And Coolidge is the one.
The one to fill the Presidential chair.
Without a lot of fuss
He did a lot for us;
So let's reciprocate and keep him there.

REFRAIN,

Keep Coolidge! Keep Coolidge!
And have no fears
For four more years!
Keep Coolidge! Keep Coolidge!
For he will right our wrongs!
He's never asleep;
Still water runs deep.
So keep Coolidge! Keep Coolidge!
He's right where he belongs!

Among those who greeted the President and Mrs. Coolidge were John Drew, Ed Wynne, Francine Larrimore, Stella Larrimore, Justine Johnstone, Dolly Sisters, Brennan and Rogers, Mlle. Herval, Lowell Sherman, McKay Morris, Alexander Leftwich, Baddy de Silva, Lew Schriber, Gerald Griffin, Arnold Daly, Cleo Mayfield, Montagu Love, William Griffen, E. L. Bernays, Frank Crumit, Hal Forde, Leslie Chambers, Jed Prouty and Miller's Band.

The out-of-door part of the ceremony started off with a speech by Al Jolson in which he assured the President of the support of the theatrical profession.

PROMISES THEATRICAL SUPPORT

"We are all Republicans from now on," Mr. Jolson said. "Incidentally, I have been a Republican these twenty years. We members of the theatre are perhaps in more intimate touch with the people than any other profession. We came to assure you of our support and offer to work for you and the Republican Party. The theatrical profession is almost 100 percent for you. Those who are not for you, Mr. President, are those who are not working, and there are very few of us in that category."

The President thanked those who had entertained him and told them the White House would be open to them for a return engagement at any time.

"I mean at least until March 4, 1925," Mr. Coolidge concluded, with a quiet smile.

In one of the scenes on the lawn Mr. Hichcock made a political address in which he sought to show how much there is in a name, whether "a geranium or a special kind of sauce," leading easily into a discussion of the name "Raymond Hitchcock" as a great name for the Presidency comparable only to such names as Abraham Lincoln, George Washington, Grover Cleveland and Calvin Coolidge. At the same time he undertook to show how impossible were some such names as William Jennings Bryan, Oscar Underwood, Robert M. La Follette and Al Smith.

"All Smith is a small-town name," said Mr. Hitchcock. "Just compare it for appeal to the people with Raymond Hitchcock and Calvin Coolidge."

"DIGNIFIED PRESIDENTIAL JOKES"

Jolson warned that all the jokes told must be dignified Presidential jokes, but perhaps one or two that must make the President laugh out loud. One such was provided by Hal Forde. Mr. Coolidge laughed, but not so heartily or so long as Mrs. Coolidge.

"Don't tell the next one until Mrs. Coolidge is through laughing," the watchful Jolson warned his friend Forde.

"I ate everything but the sausage," Al Jolson remarked to the President and Mrs. Coolidge as he was bidding them goodbye.

"Does that include the doilies?" Mrs. Coolidge parried quickly.

"No, I have them in my pocket," replied Al, with a smile.

One of the hits of the entertainment was the singing of "My Irish Rose" by Gerald Griffin, followed by a Scotch joke by Hal Forde. This was the one that made the President almost comply with the request that "h laugh out loud."

After the visit with the President and Mrs. Coolidge the actors and actresses went to the Walter Reed Hospital to entertain the disabled soldier inmates.

Economic Position Of Great Britain Is Improved

Conditions Favor Trade Revival, Says Prominent Civil Engineer

London, Nov. 11.—The economic changes which have taken place in Great Britain during the past ten years and the difficulty which has been experienced in adapting the existing commercial and financial machinery to unprecedented conditions were dealt with in an address by Mr. Edgar Crammond before the Institution of Civil Engineers on Tuesday.

Mr. Crammond said it was a question whether the present depression of the staple industries of the country was a natural reaction from the abnormal conditions created by the war or whether it represented the first definite phase of the industrial decline of Great Britain. Even if the latter opinion was a misreading of the situation, there were factors which rendered it more disturbing than any of the great industrial crises which had gone before. One of the most alarming features was the fact that although many important concerns were making no profit at the present time, costs of production were at a much higher level than those of manufacturing firms engaged in the same industry abroad. The present industrial position of France was very strong.

BURDEN OF TAXATION

British manufacturers were, it was common knowledge, bearing an excessive burden of taxation. A disquieting fact in connexion with national finance was the growth of the expenditure for social services, insurance, education, and pensions. The amount absorbed by these and similar services in 1913 was £63,000,000; it was in 1922 no less than £371,700,000. In spite of this growth of taxation the income per head of population for 1923 was 20 percent less than that for 1913. A striking feature of the national accounts was the extremely small proportion of the income that was available for depreciation and maintenance of capital and for new investments at home and abroad. This meant that the fund out of which in the past capital had been provided for the development of British industries and the Empire thus furnishing foodstuffs and raw materials for the growing population, had been largely extinguished. He believed that a great increase in the national income could be brought about. We were in danger of becoming a nation of rentiers and Civil servants instead of a nation of merchant adventurers. The real problem before the people today was not the redistribution of the national wealth but its increase.

One of the most formidable obstacles to be overcome was represented in the trade unions. Trade unionism had in the past filled an important part in the economic evolution, but it was created to meet a condition of affairs that had no application to the present situation, and, like every other section of their industrial and financial machinery, trade unionism must bring itself into line with the new world conditions.

The energies of some of the best brains of this country were being diverted to mere problems of hand-to-mouth finance at a time when they should be free to reshape the industrial and financial system.

HORIZONTAL INDUSTRIAL TRUSTS

During the past ten years considerable progress had been made in Great Britain with the extension of the horizontal trust movement. The greatest development had been in banking, insurance, shipping, shipbuilding, and railways. It had also been very marked in the distributing trades. A certain amount of progress had been made in coal, iron, and steel, and the textile trades, but taking their staple industries as a whole they had lagged behind the world movement. This was a serious defect in industrial organisation. Their great staple industries must work in bigger units than they had done in the past if they were to hold their own in the industrial conflict upon which the manufacturing powers of the world were now entering, and a Federation of Trade Corporations would be in a position to finance and safeguard the interests of industrial Britain more effectively than any organisation that existed at the present time. The international extension of the horizontal trust movement seemed to offer the most hopeful prospect of the avoidance of suicidal competition between the manufacturing powers of the world in the future.

BRITISH INVESTMENTS ABROAD

A most effective measure would be an increase in British investments abroad to the 1913 level. If that could be done, and he was confident the sum required could be found, it would be possible to increase the national income by from £200,000,000 to 300,000,000 a year and to stimulate employment in home industries. A great expansion of the investment of capital abroad might temporarily depress the value of the pound sterling, and the technical problem of financing such a policy might prove formidable. It must be borne in mind, however, that the whole structure of British finance was based on industry, and a balance must be held between the vital needs of British industry and labor and government and international finance.

One of the most reassuring features of the situation was the fact that, despite all disadvantages, we have been able to maintain the volume of our exports at a relative high figure. We were today, he said, the greatest exporters of manufactured goods, and were more than holding our own for such world trade as was carried on. It would be a profound mistake to underrate the inherent strength of the position. Even in a year of low production and bad world trade such as 1923, Great Britain had more than her way. He believed that costs of production could be reduced to a reasonable level world conditions were now favorable to a great expansion of British trade.

Why The Sterling Is Rising

Prospects of Stable Government For Several Years Important Factor

(From Our Own Correspondent)

London, Nov. 10.—The £ sterling is now worth nearly $4.60 in New York, having risen steadily during the last several weeks. Why it is rising is very well explained by Sir Herbert Hambling in an article in the Weekly Dispatch, which reads:

"The recent improvement in the value of the pound is the cumulative effect of several causes.

The general acceptance of the Dawes plan and the success of the recent German loan have considerably improved the prospects of recovery in Europe, and this is reflected in the greater readiness of American investors to acquire European securities.

The large loans recently made by America have considerably added to the supply of dollars, and this has directly acted on the sterling-dollar rate because many of those dollars are sold through London. A further influence on the exchange is the fact that rates of interest on the London market are at present higher than in New York, and this has attracted a certain amount of American short term investment on this side. It must also be remembered that once an upward movement is started, there is always a tendency for other buyers to be attracted in the belief that the rise will continue.

THE IMPROVING INFLUENCE

The results of the general election have also had an improving influence on sterling, owing to the belief that a stable government is assured for some years to come. There is nothing, however, in the movements in the index numbers of the two countries of suggest that price movements are responsible for the better exchange, and to some extent, perhaps, the improvement may be based upon expectations rather than upon any actual improvement in the general trading position of this country.

During the current year our balance of trade has been somewhat less favorable, while it must also be remembered that some dollars have still to be purchased to meet our autumn shipments from America to this country.

Writing in The Weekly Dispatch last January, Sir Herbert Hambling said: "If there is one thing in the financial situation more certain than another, it is that the pound will come back to gold parity.

British gilt-edged securities are a sound investment. Those possessing them should hold them. . . . To exchange good British pounds, even for dollars, is to make sure of a substantial ultimate loss in exchange."

November's Wholesale Price Index Number At Shanghai

(Compiled by Ministry of Finance-Bureau of Markets)

The total index number for November is 154.9 turning 1.4% higher than the previous month. In comparing with the corresponding month of last year, it is 1.5% downward. Among the various groups cereals, fuels and sundries all met increases especially fuels which ascended as high as 192.6. The reason is because in that groups except first quality Japanese mixed coal, other coals, charcoal and firewood experienced united rises. For instance, in the end of last month Shanse anthracite and first quality Japanese lump coal were sold at Tls. 16.00 and $7.50 respectively, but now have turned to $18.50 and $8.25. Candles and kerosene oil were backed by the high rate of dollars. The appreciation of cereals was due to the healthy tone of flour, bean, bean, wheat, sesamum seed and groundnuts, but rice turned the contrary. In sundries, cigarettes and prepared tobacco leaves were subjected also to the influence of the rate of dollars. Varnish, tallow, tobacco leaves, buffalo hides, bristle and cotton seed oil turned steadier. Textiles were made higher by cotton yarn, sheetings and jeans, while building materials had a higher index figure owing to the constancy of Japanese pines, Siam Teak, Singapore hard wood plank, Kai Ping fire bricks and native tiles. On the contrary, industrial materials continued in decline and reached only 44.8% as the figure in the same month of 1919. Metals were generally steady. Other food products saw the simultaneous decreases of fish, meat, sugar and sea weed but were fortunately strengthened by the dollar rate.

Our monthly figures since November, 1923, are given below:

How An Uncharted Rocky 'Patch' Was Found Near Foochow

A Russian Captain In Charge Of A Chinese Ship Has Rather A Trying Experience

By Geo. W. Missemer

Behind the prosaic Notice to Mariners No. 814 published in the Shanghai newspapers middle of last month to the effect that the revenue cruiser "Haihsing" had located a rocky patch in the Hai Tan Strait approaches (in the vicinity of Foochow) there appears a narrative of the sea which is rather interesting, and puts quite a different light on the event than as it was related in a recent issue of "Shipping and Engineering" under the caption "Hohsing Wrecked," which treated a really serious matter with a levity that did an injustice to the captain concerned.

One of the yarns known to all sea-faring people is that of the timid lady who asked the Captain whether there were any rocks in the neighborhood where the ship was plying. "Oh, no," said the Captain. But just then there was a crunching sound, and the Captain quickly added, "I am afraid, madame, I'm mistaken; we've just located one." This story is related here because it has a bearing on the entirely erroneous story published in a local shipping weekly. The Captain of the "Hohsing" was the person who really "found" the rock, and not the Chinese revenue cruiser "Haihsing." He found it by the simple expedient of hitting it, but he could not have had any conversation with a lady beforehand as there were no passengers of either sex on board, the "four ladies" mentioned in the article in the shipping paper apparently being imaginary.

As already mentioned, it was the "Hohsing"—flying the Chinese flag, the property of the Shawshing Steamship Co., with offices at 46 Szechuen Road, Shanghai, and in command of Captain Boyko, a Russian citizen—that hit this rock, which was not shown in the charts. But the Captain had the greatest difficulty in making the authorities concerned believe him and three days later a revenue cruiser which had steamed round the area in question reported that there was no such rock. Later, however, when Chinese fishermen in the neighborhood were approached on the matter they confirmed the Captain's story, it having been known to them for a long time under the name of the "Tachiao." With this definite information in hand the revenue cruiser set out again, and "found" the rock and as a result the official notification was published that a rocky patch had been located where there was only seven feet of water as against the Admiralty's chart covering this vicinity which showed the least depth as being four and three-quarter fathoms.

Some details of the voyage will, under the circumstances, be of interest, not only to mariners, but to the public in general. The "Hohsing" was on a voyage from Dairen to Chingwa, in the Foochow neighborhood, with upwards of forty thousand piculs of bean cake. After the ship had struck the rocky section, she began to leak rapidly, and the crew began to jettison the cargo, as the ship was making water badly, far in excess of the full capacity of the pumps.

This particular region has a bad reputation for piracy, and the Captain, who has not been without experience of Chinese seafaring people, soon made an arrangement, on friendly terms, with the fishing people who swarmed round the ship, to take cargo on board their fishing junks from the ship, this seeming a better alternative than to run the risks of a piratical attack.

In the meantime the Captain set himself to the task of lessening the leakage, among other expedients being that of using an awning as a collission mat, placing it in position under No. 1 hold. After beaching the vessel, in the Dwarf Anchorage region, native carpenters were employed to put wooden wedges with waste into the cracks, between the frames and plates. But as a result of weather the wedges result of weather the wedges were displaced and then a wooden box was built round the teak, held fast with bolts, and with the addition of cement the ship was got into such shape that she was able, with an anchoring now and then, to proceed to her destination and discharge her cargo.

There further temporary repairs were made, and after rather animated discussions between the officers of the vessel, the representatives of the owners, and the agents of the insurance company concerned, the Wah An made a rather precarious voyage up to Shanghai, where she went into the Tungkadoo Dock for repairs out of which she is due to come, ready for further adventures, today.

Hongkong Share Report

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor's weekly share report dated Hongkong, November 28, states:—

Our market has been fairly steady during the past week and a good many shares have changed hands, the principal feature being a strong cash demand for investment shares.

The Shanghai market has also been rather firmer with more enquiry for cash shares.

The following are the principal alterations since last week:—

Hongkong Banks:—Have been very steady and a fair number of shares have changed hands at $1172½ to $1175.

Unions:—Have had a sharp rise and are in great demand at $270 with no shares offering, business having been done at $262 to $270.

Hotels.—Continued to decline and were done as low as $18 for Old shares, but at the close are considerably firmer with buyers at $18¾ for Old and $18¼ for New shares without attracting sellers.

Hongkong Lands:—After declining to $105 have had a sharp advance with buyers at $108 cash and $113 for February.

Humphreys.—Are more or less neglected with sellers at $23.

Cements:—Have been the medium of considerable business, having been done at $23¾ and $24 Combined shares, and closing with buyers at the latter rate.

Kowloon Wharves:—Have also been more in demand and have come to business at $209 cash, with buyers at $215 for February.

Hongkong Docks:—Are easier with sellers at $151½.

Shanghai Docks:—Have improved with strong buyers at Tls. 100 cash and Tls. 102 for December.

Hongkong Electrics:—After declining to $42, a considerable number of shares changed hands at $42 to $42½.

Hongkong Trams:—Have been a strong market and were done as high as $50½ cash, but at the close are slightly easier at $49.

Peak Trams:—Are nominal at quotations.

China Sugars:—Have been more or less neglected but few if any shares are offering.

China Providents:—Have been the medium of considerable business and have been done at $33½ for Combined shares.

China Lights:—After declining to $23 have had a sharp rise closing firm with buyers at $24¼ and more would be paid.

Dairy Farms:—Are wanted at $24¾.

Lane Crawfords:—Are on offer at $19.

Steamboats:—After declining to $34½, have firmed up and as we go to press are wanted at $36¼, sales having been effected at $36½.

Waterboats:—Continue to be firm at $18 without attracting sellers.

Star Ferries:—After declining to $110, are rather firmer with buyers at $114.

London Quotations of the 27th inst:—Hongkong Banks £138. 10/-, Indos Deferred £15. Shells £4. 5/-. All middle prices.

Exchange:—The demand selling rate on London is 2-4/- and the T.T. on Shanghai is Tls. 72⅛.

Cotton Market

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co.'s cotton market report dated Dec. 5 states:

China Cotton:—Although a fair volume of business for spot deliveries to the Mills may be recorded, prices during the greater part of the week continued in a steady direction with fluctuations moving in a very narrow range. Toward the close however, in sympathy with the recessions now being experienced in Mid-Americans and the influence of local offerings of spot Indians at attractive prices, an easier undertone, for the better grades of the domestic staple, was very much in evidence with indications of witnessing further declines in the near future provided there is no marked appreciation, in the mean time, in the value of the foreign fibre. Taking into consideration for the moment the various factors influencing the trend of the market the inclination is more toward the long than the short side. Tone of the market, weak.

A. B. Rosenfeld and Son, Inc. in their weekly cotton market report, dated December 5 state:

China Cotton.—Since writing our last report, there is nothing further to report which may be interesting or cheerful reading by our friends. The market during the week has remained fairly steady, with an extreme range of quotations of a quarter of a tael and at the close yesterday practically the same as a week ago.

For the present, therefore, we fail to see any reason to depart from our former opinion, and we continue to believe in higher prices, though in taking this view, it should not be overlooked that it might be well at times to take advantage of strong spots to secure accrued profits with the view of replacing purchases in easier markets.

Yarn.—Since our last, the market has been keeping steady. The general tendency continues to be toward higher prices. Some 4,000 bales were sold by Spinners and 8,000 bales second hand, the later sales have been exported during the past week to Interior points. From present indications, we look for better markets in the future.

Pootung Residents Are Made Victims Of Armed Raiders

Pootung residents are being badly harrassed by armed gangs according to reports appearing in the local vernacular press.

A gang of ten or more men, armed with knives, are said to have entered the home of Sz Miau-sing in Pootung Wednesday night. After throwing a packet of lime into Sz's face, they stabbed him many times about the body, and also stabbed a woman of the household in the face. Sz is said to have told the authorities that he thought the attack was engineered by a man whose application for a loan he had recently refected.

Three men, armed with knives, entered the home of Loh Miau-sung in Pootung on Thursday night, and, after binding an old woman, stole a

Weather Reports

Dec. 4.—The pressure is considerably rising in Chihli and Manchuria, slightly falling in our Valley. The typhoon is stopped and probably fills up, to the N W of Luzon. Easterly winds on the Yellow Sea and further North; regular monsoon in the south. Cyclonic breezes on the N of the China Sea. Overcast and mild weather in our neighborhood; general rain in Fukien and at Formosa. Fog in Annam and Tongking.

Dec. 5.—Overcast weather; some rain during the night. Pressure below the average here; the barometer rises rapidly in the North. Strong NNE wind with some squalls. A center, probably from the typhoon, passes between Formosa and the Meiaco Simas, veering to NNE.

Dec. 6.—Overcast and cold weather, clearing up probably tomorrow. The typhoon will cross the Eastern Sea towards N-N-E or N-E. Gales around the Loochoos. Very rough weather along the coast, between Kiangsu and the Formosa Strait. Hard Northerly monsoon to the North of the 30th parallel.

Dr. C. T. Wang's Plan For The Reconstruction Of China

THERE is nothing new or mysterious in the plan suggested by Dr. C. T. Wang for the reconstruction of China, in his address before the American College Club in Peking as reported in the CHINA PRESS yesterday. In reference to the vital matter of a demarcation of the powers of the Central Government and the provinces, he offers the follows:

"Now the following should constitute national functions or functions exercised by the Central Government: (1) national defence, (2) national transportation, (3) enactment of national laws, (4) unified system of law courts, (5) foreign affairs, (6) national finances and currency, and (7) other functions which by their very nature require handling by the central government. Apart from these, all other matters should appertain to, and be exercised by, the local or provincial authorities. In other words, instead of the old policy of domination or centralisation, there should be provincial autonomy or decentralisation and mutual co-operation instead of veiled antagonism between the central government and the provinces.

On the subject of national and provincial finance, Dr. Wang sums up the situation in the following brief paragraph,

"As regards finances, the following should be administered by the central government: (a) customs revenue, (b) salt revenue, (c) wine and tobacco tax, (d) stamp tax, and (e) revenue derived from the national transportation system. These excepted, all other taxes and duties should appertain to, and be reserved for the use of the provinces. Furthermore, it should be understood that the central government will assist such provinces as are so circumstanced as to be unable to discharge their own obligations or meet their requirements.

Then turning to the problem of communications the Minister of Foreign Affairs calls attention to the fact that China has but two miles of railroad to the 100,000 population while Canada, for instance has 378 miles for the same unit of population. China stands at the very bottom of the list of nations from the standpoint of modern means of transportation which in turn is responsible for the relative smallness of the foreign trade. China's foreign commerce only amounts to two and a half billion silver dollars while Australia's foreign commerce amounts to a hundred billion silver dollars annually.

After considering the financial situation from the standpoint of defaulted obligations which Dr. Wang recommends must be consolidated and refunded, he discusses the matter of taxation and makes the following statement regarding likin

"Now the plan which occurs most readily to mind is to do away with the bugbear of inland taxation known as likin, which throttles trade at every collecting station and hampers the development of industries at every turn. Hence the fifth essential in the reconstruction of China is to abolish the likin.

"The incubus of this suicidal levy weighs as heavily upon the country as the lack of modern communications. It is a curse to commercial and industrial expansion, recognised by China as well as by foreign Powers. Treaties have been concluded as far back as twenty years ago with the British, American and Japanese Governments for its abolition. Yet it is still allowed to exist in spite of its benumbing influence on the industries and trade in China. It stands to reason that the removal of such an incubus will enable the country's industries and trade to go forward in leaps and bounds, and this in turn will develop the trade between China and the world.

"Increased trade will spell increased revenue, and this in turn will increase the purchasing power of the Chinese people, and augment their demand for foreign commodities. The nations of the world being now, more than ever, mutually interdependent on one another, the abolition of likin will therefore not only increase China's revenues, which will in time liquidate this country's indebtedness, but will also draw China and the world closer together through the clasping hand of international trade and commerce.

And finally and inevitably Dr. Wang comes to the subject of militarism.

"As the history of the past thirteen years of republicanism has conclusively shown, these armies, the total of which has been variously estimated at one million, and one and a half million, have not been maintained for national defence, nor have they contributed, with but a few exceptions, to the security and the happiness of the country. Therefore any program of reconstruction must include the disbandment of troops which are not strictly necessary for national defence or the preservation of internal peace and order.

"Granting that the disbandment of troops is feasible, I for one do not favor turning loose the unwanted soldiers upon the country, for then the remedy will be worse than the malady which it seeks to cure. The wisest plan would appear to be to divide the present forces into three categories: (a) a real fighting unit who are under proper discipline, (b) a police force or gendarmerie, and (c) the greater majority to be employed in building roads and cultivating or reclaiming waste lands."

This concludes the story, and as stated in the foregoing there is nothing difficult or mysterious about the problem of the reconstruction of China. Every country which has ever achieved anything in the history of the world has solved this problem in one way or another. There isn't a Chinese schoolboy in the land who doesn't understand the principles, but as Dr. Wang stated in his speech, "Who is to bell the cat?"

A Good Job Too!

WHILE there are some who will read of the decision to stop repatriating Russians with a certain amount of regret, those who have believed from the outset that this policy was not altogether good, will have the satisfaction of knowing that the scheme has been stopped. From one point of view, it is true that this is to be regretted, but that is based upon the undesirability of having so many destitute white people within our borders. It is a selfish reason to some extent and not entirely disassociated with ideas of our own comfort, but when all is said and done the destitute Russians have given us comparatively little trouble, save that connected with the paramount necessity of providing them with sufficient food to keep their souls in their bodies. It is an attribute of the Anglo-Saxon race, which, after all dominates the fortunes of this city, that it has always maintained a profound sympathy for those who are driven by distress to seek refuge in countries other than their own. And when that distress arises from political persecution, when to remain in Russia may mean arrest and even eventual death, the motives which have led so many of these unfortunate people to seek our hospitality must have a particularly strong appeal. Most of the seven thousand Russians who are in our midst are not here because they preferred Shanghai to Russia, but because they wanted so live their lives rather than have them cut off by a tyranny which has already accounted for so many. It is impossible to withhold sympathetic consideration for such a reason. Our English readers especially will remember that in the course of their history, their hospitable shores have time and again provided safe asylum for the victims of revolution in other countries, while the United States has also been no laggard in this respect.

If repatriation had been a good scheme we should have been the first to endorse it: but from the outset we pointed out that it was not likely to succeed for the very reasons which have been made apparent in Dr. Grieg's letter. It may possibly be perfectly true that the committee when it embarked on this proposal felt amply safeguarded by the assurances they received that no political persecution would be visited on the heads of those who went back. These assurances seemed so emphatic that many of the Russians who availed themselves of this opportunity of regaining their native land, apparently trusted in them, and if they did, there seems no good reason why the committee responsible for the execution of the scheme should have thought any different. But those who trust in the assurances of the Bolshevik, build in the quicksands, and Dr. Grieg in his letter points out that many of those who have returned, have been subjected to exactly that persecution which we foresaw. Visualise for a moment the conditions which would arise out of such a proceeding. A number of people, who fled from Russia because of their dislike and fear of the Bolshevik control, are returned in a batch to that jurisdiction. They must naturally be marked by the authorities. Their original flight shows them to be irreconcilable Whites, objects of profound suspicion, of dislike and even positive hatred. Are such people likely to remain long unmolested, once the Bolsheviks have them in their power? The question has only to be put to be answered, and if that is not sufficient Dr. Grieg's report seems to supply whatever corroboration is necessary.

It is all very well for local philanthropic workers to endeavor to discount the seriousness of Dr. Grieg's statements, but it gets nowhere, for the simple reason that the doctor, by reason of his official mission should be in a better position to obtain and pass on facts than any of us who live at such a distance, and it is now apparent that the very things we foresaw would happen have come about. Repatriated refugees in Russia at the present moment stand convicted of anti-Bolshevism: means of and reasons for punishment can always be found. At the same time those who sought by this means to alleviate distress in our midst by such means deserve our best thanks for their endeavors. Possibly with any other government than the Bolshevik their efforts would have been entirely successful, but if indeed our efforts to do good have placed some of these unfortunates within the power of their enemies, and harm has come to them, then the scheme has been a failure—we have done harm to the individual in our attempt to do good to the whole. A good proposal has been ruined by the Machiavellian cynicism of the followers of Lenin and Trotsky. Of course, we may be met with the query "What alternative had you then, or have you now to offer?" We had none then, and have none now. We fear that things will have to go on very much as they are, until matters are improved in Russia itself. Our poor will remain with us and demands will be made continually upon our purses until some better remedy can be found. The task of caring for them may become harder and harder, but it is better for ourselves and them that we should look after them, than that their heads should be broken by the precious balms from which they have fled.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

REASSURANCE FROM WASHINGTON

(The Boston Globe).

Those who have been awaiting a declaration of American policy regarding the present crisis in China have reason for thankfulness that Mr. Hughes' State Department has at last enunciated one. An Associated Press dispatch from the capital announces that the Administration has made no move to canvass other Powers regarding a joint Chinese intervention policy, and that no American diplomatic representative in Europe has advised the Department of State of any conversation with any foreign Powers on that subject.

This is welcome news. It is especially so because press dispatches from Europe and Asia indicate a persistent belief to the contrary in Tokio, Pekin and London. The Japanese official press assert that the Japanese Government has strong reason to believe that a discussion is under way between Washington and London regarding a joint policy of intervention by the Powers in China for the purpose of "setting up a stable government" there. The Peking Government, which of course must be misinformed on the matter, is so certain that intervention negotiations are in progress that it has issued a formal appeal for neutrality on the part of the great Powers. The London press declare that conversations about joint intervention by the Powers, including the United States, are under way in London, and the British transport workers are so sure this is so that they are talking of staging a strike to force England to remain neutral.

With all these evidences to the contrary, our State Department's words, carried on the wires by the Associated Press, must be accepted as meaning that no intervention in any shape or form by this Government, either alone or in combination with other European or Asiatic Powers, is contemplated at Washington. Intervention, of course, would be entirely unwarranted. It would amount to our Government adopting a policy directly opposite to that which the United States adopted under Lincoln, when we demanded that no foreign Power intervene in America during the Civil War, and when we levied and collected a huge claim for damages against England for attempting it.

The Philippines As A Far Eastern Problem

"The United States and the Philippines," a new book by Judge Dan R. Williams of New York City, a resident of the Philippines for more than twenty years and well known in Shanghai presents an exceptionally clear case of the problem that came forward with such vehemence a year ago, urged on by several Filipino independence commissions to America and opposed at the same time by individual American business men of Manila.

The book also presents to the student of Far East affairs a clear cut history of events in the last 25 years, being brought up to events of the middle of the present year, 1924.

Judge Williams believes the Philippines problem not one of importance only to the United States or to the Philippines. The message to Admiral Dewey at Hongkong in 1898 to proceed to Manila and capture or destroy the Spanish fleet, Judge Williams states, carried in its wake a train of happenings that changed the destiny of the United States and the entire world in Far East policies.

An aspect, little thought of by the average student of international affairs, and not mentioned by "politicos" of the islands, is the conclusion of Judge William's book. The Filipinos say they are entitled to independence, immediate or within the near future, by Jones laws or platforms of political parties. Judge Williams declares the presence of America in the Philippines is one of triple right, approved by all nations.

The United States conquered the Philippines from Spain by superior military and naval powers.

The United States paid Spain for the archipelago, after the conquest. The disturbing friar agricultural lands were purchased.

The United States gained the consent of all nations—and the Filipino leaders themselves—to establish a government in the islands.

Thus, one finds the United States with greater rights in the Philippines than it has in the territory of the Louisiana purchase or in Florida, purchased from Spain.

However, not content with that proof, Judge Williams shows the weaknesses of the Filipino—a Malay—in self-government when the opportunity was given under Governor General Harrison, a President Wilson appointee. A chapter deals with the building of a government under the administration of Americans who had stayed with the country after the war. Health conditions, financial problems, educational systems and the hundred and one other difficulties and needs of a prosperous country were improved and ironed out from 1901 to 1913.

The next chapter tells the story of the wrecking of a government under the Harrison regime—untrained Filipinos took over number one positions of trained and conscientious Americans. That was sufficient. Costs of running the government mounted with decreasing income. The government went into business, buying the Manila Railroad at an exorbitant price, establishing national companies with public funds, including the Philippine National Bank which several times has been near completely wrecking the government through losses incurred by unsafe loans, made at random. Only the presence of the United States saved the bank and the government.

The Filipino is not a business man, Judge Williams concludes. The Malay never has been. Chinese control more than 90 percent of all business of the islands. Americans and British and a few other foreigners have charge of much of the remainder.

Granting of independence to the Philippines by congress would be breaking all precedent and reversing all previous purchases and conference rulings, Judge Williams says.

Judge Williams declares himself acting for the best interests of the Filipino. Independence would mean a complete severance of all freedom of trade which the Philippines have now. Duty free goods would be taxed heavily after independence. The Filipino would be an alien in the United States, one not entitled to citizenship or even wholesale entrance. The Philippine flag would be a weak one among strong flags of the Far East.

A working agreement along some form of government whereby Filipinos would be assured every measure of local autonomy consistent with their welfare is the urge of Judge Williams. The Philippines have great agriculture wealth and much undeveloped areas. Their future is in the hands of the United States. The entire world looks to the United States to handle the situation well.

"Dreams And Realities"

As an interesting "follow" to Judge Dan R. Williams' "The United States and the Philippines," a constructive review of the Philippine problem to the United States and the world, comes an article, "Dreams and Realities in the Philippines," in the October number of "Our World," a magazine published in New York, written by Mr. Vicente Villamin, a Filipino attorney and economist expert who has done much writing on things Philippines in the last two years.

Mr. Villamin appeals to his fellow countrymen for continuance under the American flag as the best solution for the present disturbed business and political conditions in the islands.

Mr. Villamin reviews much of the same ground as does Judge Williams. And his conclusions are practically the same. Mr. Villamin speaks from the angle of the legal status, getting details untouched by Judge Williams. He says immediate and complete independence would be a calamity to the Philippines. His concluding paragraph advises the Filipino to "look up to heaven and thank the Almighty that his beloved land is enjoying peace, plenty and freedom under the United States of America."

GENERAL FENG POINTS THE WAY TO PEACE

Editor, The China Press:

Sir: The recent news concerning the resignation of General Feng Yu-hsiang, if it is really founded on sound ground and can later be proved to be true, should carry with it the real message of salvation for China; and should further mark the epoch of a new era in Chinese history in which the militarist for the first time, since the establishment of the Republic of China, has given up arms and submitted to the will of the people.

Whether General Feng's resignation is out of his own sincere desire for peaceful unification of China, or is crystallised, as some people believe, as a result of the disappointment in which none of his adherents is being appointed to the new cabinet, is not the purpose of the writer to agree—but one thing we must all agree, that General Feng does not wish to start another suicidal conflict with any other faction by retiring from the military life, is but a true and undeniable fact.

Who else in China, since the establishment of the Republic, has, out of his own accord, proclaimed his willingness to give up arms when his military influence is in full swing; nay, not even when he is facing the real danger of being eliminated.

General Tsai of Kiangsi would certainly be a good case to cite as an example. The latter is now brought to face a serious situation in Kiangsi in which most of his associates have assumed a rebellious attitude by raising arms to put him out of position. He is a man of no determination, but his burning desire for money is so urgent that he certainly would like to drag on for few more dollars at the lives and expenses of the people, until he is finally cast out of door.

There is no reason why I should put General Feng on the same footing with General Tsai; but the comparison is simply here made to illustrate the unwillingness of most of the militarists to sit aside the manslaughter weapons for good, even when their dangers are imminent.

Militarism has, no doubt, ruined China largely in its integrity as being an independent nation, and individually in its enjoyment as a peaceful and prosperous citizen. What the militarists have done in the past is too evident to warrant further remarks.

Apparently the only salvation of China today lies in the downfall of militarism; unless all the superfluous troops be wisely disbanded whatever else might be done is simply pushing herself one step further towards making herself a nation without existence.

General Feng, no doubt, has struck the first blow on militarism, and certainly it will be more interesting to see who else in the future would like to keep track with him!

Thanking you for your valuable space.

Yours Sincerely
J. K. Wong.

THE FUTURE OF CHINA

Editor, The China Press:

Sir,—The present muddle of China seriously engages country-wide attention. All are looking forward with longing towards China's destiny. Popularly and somewhat correctly everyone regards this last uprising as an act towards the final political unification because Wu Pei-fu has been eliminated, Sun Yat-sen has joined with Chang Tso-lin and Feng Yu-hsiang accompanied by Chang Tso-lin has proclaimed his elaborate manifesto. At least there is some hope of political coordination and national solidarity may be achieved.

Why do militarists fight and for what do they fight? Apparently the plottings and fightings among the war lords are absolutely from motives of selfishness for which no further interpretation is necessary. On one hand Wu Pei-fu, though defeated, is still trying to occupy his sphere of influence in the Yangtsze Valley. On the other side Chang Tso-lin is anxious to have territories added to his empire and tries his best to destroy Wu Pei-fu. Desperately wars of revenge are at hand. Who will suffer? The attitude of Chang Tso-lin is so obvious to the public that the so-called round-table conference referred to in Tientsin will be at the mercy of him. Sun Yat-sen and Feng Yu-hsiang are also watching with avaricious eyes and trying to gain advantage. The under-current of mutual distrust is at work. No doubt, the result will be either to precipitate another country-wide war or to make Chang Tso-lin absolute war lord of China.

Indeed destruction must be preliminary to construction. But without definite construction efforts destruction means disintegration. The present existing situation of China does not necessarily mean complete destruction. In a true sense it provides a great opportunity for reconstruction. However as long as the "Military devils" remain in power there can be no valid hope of construction. Then destruction means ultimately dismemberment, which is the certain outcome! What can be done to bring about a period of peace? Nothing can satisfy the question but the following suggestions! Both of the Southern and the Northern existing Governments should be dissolved. A National Assembly should be formed in Tientsin, Shanghai, or some other place beyond the sphere of militarist influence and controlled by the enlightened and educated Chinese representatives from different classes. The best military as well as civil officers should be welcomed, but only allowed to be "advisers" for recommending schemes of reforms. They should not be allowed to hinder the undertakings. Having thus satisfactorily formed a National Assembly a conscription system should be adopted in order to provide a strong standing army for checking, if compromise fails, those militarists or, conversely speaking, "Tupies" to which name they are so justly entitled. It is certain that the people will respond forthwith with enthusiasm because everywhere they are suffering from the tyranny of the militarists. Only the word is needed and China will respond unanimously. Revolution! A revolution for eternal peace! Of course, the task is by no means an easy and brief one. Many steps are required. What I suggest is only a very brief introduction indeed.

Sadly enough, our country-men are not animated by national consciousness as a whole,—not because they lack the spirit of patriotism. Hesitation and intangible hope constitutes the general feeling of the Chinese masses. Dear fellow country-men, opportunity is now knocking at our doors. Let it not pass unobserved and unheeded. It is a new era for us and now is the time to sacrifice!

Zung Zung-sung.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

A flower and a handkerchief to match—that's what we choose nowadays.

Shoulders have come into prominence—left shoulders especially. For the woman of fashion now wears her nosegay of artificial flowers where the soldier used to wear his epaulettes. Even real flowers are worn aloft in this manner.

This may be part and parcel of the fashion for keeping the front of bodices as plain and untrimmed as possible. For a time all floral trimming was placed at one hip, and sometimes of course evening frocks still show a handful of flowers with trailing stems at the hip. But usually it is the shoulder. Afternoon frocks and suits have their appropriate flower or bouquet.

The important thing seems to be to select the flower that suits the frock and the occasion. Roses one choses for evening. The carnation—in any color, even black or green—is the part favorite at tea time for the time being. When you wear a green carnation on the shoulder of your suit or street frock you carry a matching green georgette handkerchief. With a black carnation: which you wear with a light colored suit, you carry a black and white georgette handkerchief. For day wear these nosegays are not large—the carnations are about normal in size. For evening, however, flowers are enormous—roses six inches across are not unusual.

There is one alternative. If you like you may place your bouquet on your fur collar, high up toward one ear. You may effect this fashion with the fur collar of your winter coat or you may wear the flower on a fur animal piece or fur stole.

The woman who likes all sorts of little accessories even selects artificial flowers to wear with her negligees—always of course with a georgette handkerchief to go with them.

Black carnation and black and white georgette handkerchief.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

FOR THE FIREPLACE

Do your tongs and shovel and poker and brush slip and fall on the hearth? Unless you have some definite way of holding them upright, they doubtless do slip and slide. If you want an attractive and effective way of keeping them in place, just buy two little brass holders, one to screw on each side the fireplace. These are shaped, roughly speaking, like the letter C and the handles of the different fireside implements are slipped into the opening and kept upright. They are very attractive, too.

LEOPARD SPOTS

You can buy most attractive collar and cuff made of satin or of duvetyn marked with leopard spots. They are to be worn on frocks or blouses. You can buy imitation leopard fur in collars.

TWO GOOD OMELETS

Potato Omelet

Melt a tablespoon of butter in a frying pan. Add a cup of finely chopped boiled potatoes. Pour over this two well beaten eggs. Season with salt and pepper and cook until done. Fold like an omelet.

Apple Omelet

Beat the yolks of four eggs with two tablespoons of sugar and the grated rind of half a lemon. Add the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and half a cup of flour. Mix thoroughly, add two tablespoons of cream, and make an omelet. Spread with apple sauce, fold, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and serve.

German Lines To Exploit Sailless Sailing Vessels

Low Running Costs And High Efficiency Of Flettner's Invention May Revolutionize Slow Freight Trade

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Satisfied with the successful results of Anton Flettner's experiments in exploiting wind force for maritime propulsion, German shipping companies are preparing to take advantage of the phenomenal saving in operating costs and the increased efficiency promised by the "sailless sailing ship."

Flettner's invention is not only more economical and safer and from the nautical point of view more effective than the ordinary sailing ship but it also represents a complete departure from the primitive ideas of sail propulsion employed by mankind in one form or another for the last 2,000 years.

The fact that a cylinder rotating in a current of air exercises pressure in a direction at right angles nineteenth century and goes under has been known since the middle ninteenth century and goes under the name of the "magnus law." It is this principle which Flettner has now applied with such signal success to navigation.

PATENTED RIGHTS PROTECTED

The Krupps' Germania yards at Kiel and the Hamburg-America Line are both interested in the patent rights of the new invention, and last week exhaustive tests with the new apparatus were carried out on board the three-masted motor schooner Buckau. These trials in the Baltic proved a complete success.

The sailless sailing ship has two strong pivot masts firmly fixed to the vessel's keel, like ordinary masts. Around these are hung two revolving cylindrical turrets, each about ten feet in diameter and sixty feet in height and made of very thin sheets of steel. The weight of the turrets, together with the masts, is only about one-fiftieth of the old masts, with their load of sails and yards.

Having first been set in motion by a small electric motor of low horsepower operated by one man, the turrets turn in the wind, making as many as 100 revolutions a minute. The electric motor can be used to alter the direction of the revolutions, and also the speed. If, for instance, both turrets are turning at the same rate per minute, and the helm is not put on, the ship will move forward in a direction at right angles to the wind. Should the speed of one turret be changed, the result on the direction of the ship's course will be the same as if the helm had been changed.

80 PERCENT SAVING EXPECTED

The wind pressure obtained by means of the revolving turrets is said to be about fifteen times as great as that obtained by a similar spread of canvas, and the speed attained under favorable conditions exceeds that of a steam-propelled freighter or even a motor freighter.

On the East Asiatic freight route, where for 90 percent of the voyage a favorable wind can be counted upon, the economy of running costs that may be obtained by the Flettner method can be calculated at anything between 30 and 80 percent. One man alone can do all that is necessary to regulate the movement of the turrets. Thus it seems probable that the "rotor ship," as the new vessel is called, is destined to become the cheap freight ship of the future.

Experts on board the Buckau during the trial trip included representatives of most of the big German shipping lines, and many of the German marine insurance societies. They were all astonished at the ease with which a ship with such clumsy looking turrets could be maneuvered. Whether running before the wind or with the wind on her quarter she surpassed all expectations.

The invention has already been taken up by a German company with large capital and a number of motor and sailing ships have been purchased for conversion into rotor ships.

LONDON SHIPPERS HOPEFUL

London, Nov. 9.—In view of the costs of running steamers and motor ships it is most probable that there will be a big future for the new device worked out by a German professor, Anton Flettner, for the propulsion of sailing vessels, in the opinion of shipping experts here.

Reports of successful experiments carried out in the Baltic with a schooner equipped with masts instead of sails for utilising air currents have been followed with the closest attention here. While the claim that the new invention is as important as the application of the steam engine to navigation is regarded as exaggerated, at the same time it is conceded that the device should lead to a considerable reduction of expenses, especially for freight vessels.

The assertion that, with good wind, a ship equipped with Flettner's invention can travel faster than a cargo ship relying solely upon steam power is recognised here as well founded on the basis of reports of the Baltic experiments. Shipping experts in this country hold that it would be a retrograde step to use the new system of propulsion for a return to the sailing ship pure and simple, but a reduction from 50 to as much as 80 percent in running costs is foreseen if ships were equipped with propellers and with motors of moderate horsepower and wind were then used as additional propulsive power.

The mechanical exploitation of wind power should lead to a large reduction in the personnel of freighters, it is considered here.

NOTE

Carlton Limited inform their patrons that a complete change has been made in their catering system.

To avoid the routine of everyday a restaurant manager has been appointed. To whom the duty of supervising the daily menu has been exclusively allocated.

This is merely the second step in the ladder of excellence. For an entirely new staff has been employed to attend to the catering, with this efficient combination Carlton Ltd. feel that their cafe facilities are complete and that their Tiffins, Teas and Dinners are unequalled anywhere in the Orient.

Chungking Notes

(Independent News Service)

Chungking, Nov. 25.—Mr. J. P. De Berry, China Agent for the Singer Sewing Machine Company, Shanghai, returned to Chungkiang today after a visit to Chengtu. He will leave tomorrow for down river. He reports business in a poor condition due to disturbed political conditions and excessive taxation. Considerable hope is felt for the future although all depends upon the outcome of the civil war.

Mr. E. E. Bolton, Chungking manager for the W. H. Bolton Bristle Company, has just returned from a business trip to Shanghai.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McCurdy of the M. E. M., returned to Chungking on the "Chi Lai" operated by the Yangtze Rapid S. S. Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Mohying, of Barry and Dodwell, returned to Chungking after having spent a number of months on home leave.

Dr. and Mrs. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Dye, old Szechuen residents, and the two Misses Skevingtons and Miss Nelson have arrived in Chungking en route to Chengtu. They are all Americans and are representing the Baptist Mission. They are stopping at the C. I. M.

Practically all the boats that arrive from Ichang report that they were heavily fired upon between here and Wanhsien. There seems to be a nest of robbers that is determined to make trouble (as if hadn't enough already) for the shippers and steamship companies.

Various rumors are afloat regarding the military situation here. All leaders are evidently waiting for the results elsewhere before they make any move. Some say that there is a little more hope for settlement than a few weeks ago. Most of them seem at least to be ready to back up Tuan Chu-jui, if he only takes the lead.

Numerous executions have taken place recently. Most of the victims were robbers and thieves. Some were executed on the main streets where they were caught in the act of stealing. Discipline is a little better these days since the military have formed a united force for protection of the city with General Tang Tse Chen in charge.

General Liu Hsiang is due back in Chungking soon.

Robbers have been active on the Chungking hills. A few days ago heavy firing was heard. A few minutes later a foreigner passed through Huang Ko Ya on horseback and saw a band of robbers sitting in the tea shops resting and drinking tea. The local volunteers who has been called out had fled to the wooded hill sides. Later in the evening more firing was heard and the volunteers were again on the job, their lanterns showing at points all over the hills. The robbers then crossed the river. They are said to be part of a large band under the leadership of the "Big Footed Woman".

Russian Asks Money Of Wrong Pedestrian

Alexandra Churaloff, Russian, became intoxicated Thursday night and while in that condition attempted to beg. His first victim was Chief Inspector Vaughan of the police. The Russian was arrested. He told Mixed Court yesterday he didn't realise he was begging. The court gave him three days.

Christmas Money Story Contest For The Children

The China Press begs to announce that $75 in prizes will be given to school children of the city between the ages of 12 and 16 years who write the best short stories for this newspaper.

Stories will be published daily in The China Press and also in the forthcoming number of the Sunday China Press, to be issued on December 21 just before Christmas.

Stories should be from 500 to 1000 words in length.

The prizes will be as follows:

1st prize	.....	$30.
2nd ,,	.....	15.
3rd ,,	.....	12.50
4th ,,	.....	10.00
5th ,,	.....	7.50

All stories must be in the office of The China Press by noon on Saturday, December 13th.

Contestants have not much time and are urged to start their compositions early.

Stories should be written on one side of the paper. They must be in ink, in legible handwriting, or they may be typewritten.

The stories need not necessarily be about Christmas as in previous China Press story contests. However, there is no objection to the introduction of Christmas scenes or incidents. The scene of the story must be laid in China.

Anecdotes are not wanted. This is a fiction contest, and short stories are desired. Each story must have characters and a real plot.

The stories will be judged by members of The China Press staff.

In addition to the total of $75 in prizes, The China Press will pay $5 for each story published which does not win a prize.
